

SYMPATHETIC STRIKE MAY BE THE NEXT MOVE

LABOR LEADERS IN CHICAGO TALK OF SUCH ACTION TO AID TELEGRAPHERS.

NEILL IS IN WASHINGTON

Form of General Instructions Adopted for All Union Men to Follow in Strike.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—Chicago's vast army of unionists, representing every nationality and trade, is ready for a sympathetic strike should such a step be necessary to win the battle for the telegraphers.

One hundred electricians employed by the drainage canal have already received instructions to quit work today and other labor bodies have under consideration similar action. It is expected that the Chicago Federation of Labor, at its meeting tomorrow will start the ball rolling. The question of ordering out a certain number of tradesmen who are affiliated with the Federation, it was admitted today will be the principal subject discussed.

The strike on the drainage has been ordered for two reasons. First, that the two telegraph companies are negotiating a contract for power from the canal; second, that the sympathies of the electricians for the operators are stronger than their desire to work under present conditions.

Labor leaders admitted today that the prospects of a general walk-out have increased with such alarming rapidity within the past few hours that they fear that some of the more radical union members may act on their own initiative. It is for the purpose of preventing unwise hasty action that the labor federation will meet tomorrow.

Developments in the way of peace negotiations are expected today by the visiting trip to the east of Commissioner of Labor Neill and President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor.
In the meantime the strategy board composed of Messrs. Small, Russell, Quick and Perham are going ahead today with their plans for a test of strength between the telegraphers and the telegraph companies. Commissioner Neill will explain the Chicago situation to President Roosevelt today and at the same time Gompers will confer with the executive board of the National labor organization. As a result of these two important conferences it is expected that a board will soon be appointed to discuss settlement terms.
President Samuel Gompers report to the national executive council of the American Federation of Labor will recommend the following strike measures:

Indorsement of the strike by the 2,500,000 organized workers of the United States and the acceptance of the working alliance with Canadian telegraphers.

Proposal to vote strike fund of $1,000,000 to be held in reserve until a national strike assessment may be made in the ranks of all affiliated unions. The total amount to be determined by the liberality and ability of the various unions.

Indorsement of the attitude of the Order of Railway Telegraphers and assurances of the approval of their action in an official communication.

Adoption of a form of general instructions for all union men to refuse to aid the telegraph companies in any manner. This may lead to a strike of electricians and if attempts are made by the railroads to transmit commercial business to a strike of railway employees. Recommendations of arbitration as an approved method of the adjusting the differences between the strikers and the companies.

Expressions of willingness to accept the intervention of Commissioner of Labor Neill as the president's representative as mediator and peacemaker.

Suggestion that the strikers yield something in the way of concessions and deprecation of a stubborn attitude against peace.

Commissioner Neill will report to President Roosevelt immediately upon his arrival at Washington. The situation is regarded as being grave enough to demand a Sunday conference with the president. Within the past twenty-four hours powerful influences are being brought to bear at Washington to induce the government to compel President Clowry of the Western Union to adopt a conciliatory attitude. Commissioner Neill will inform the President that the theatre of the trouble is now transferred to New York. He will tell him of the determination of the strikers to win some material concessions and point out the hopelessness of trying to get them to return with simple assurances of decided betterment of their condition.

"LIAR" FROM WOMAN CAUSED THE STRIKE

Los Angeles, Aug. 17.—Nine little words telegraphed by J. E. Ryan, Los Angeles, to Mrs. Sadie Nichols, Oakland, were directly responsible for the great telegraphers' strike now sweeping over the country:

"I GUESS MY REPUTATION
YOURS."

These are the words.
Because of these simple words, the result of a woman's tiff between a man and a woman, commercial telegraphers throughout the United States have gone on strike.

The whole nation has paused in its proud march of progress—has been compelled to pause—and millions of dollars, as yet uncounted, have been lost.

And all for what?

Because a man and a woman had a little personal tiff over a telegraph wire!

J. E. Ryan was employed in the central office of the Western Union office at Los Angeles. He is a union man and has been an operator 27 years.

Mrs. Sadie Nichols was and is still employed by H. J. Jeffs, chief operator at Oakland, himself a nonunion man and active in his opposition to nonunionism.

Ryan declares that Mrs. Nichols apparently sought direct trouble with him over the wire so as to effect the discharge of him—a union man—and that in the course of her conversation she deftly ticked off that "short, ugly word."

LIAR.

Diplomatically, Ryan ticked back to her:

"I GUESS MY REPUTATION
YOURS."

There the trouble started.

Ryan was discharged instantanely. His fellow-operators demanded his reinstatement.

MAY EFFECT NEWARK

That the strike of the operators that is now sweeping the country, may soon affect and tie up all the service in and out of Newark, becomes more apparent daily, and should the managers and operators of the Western Union and Postal companies elect to go with the strikers
the service will be effectively crippled.

E. N. Vanatta, general chairman of the B. and O. division of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, was seen by an Advocate reporter this morning, and said the operators of the B. and O. would remain at work, as they are not affiliated with the Merchants' Telegraph Union of America, unless messages, other than railroad business were accepted by the company. H. B. Purham of St. Louis is president of the O. R. T., while Mr.
Small is president of the other organization.

TONGUE BITTEN OFF IS SEWED ON AGAIN

Correctionsville, Ia., Aug. 17.— Physicians who sewed Robert Hammond's tongue on after the child had bitten it off removed the splints holding the severed parts in place today and found that the power of speech still remained, the boy articulating slowly, but with promise of entire recovery of speech.

The child had seen his father whip a horse to make him kick in an attempt to do likewise the boy got the whip; walked up behind the horse, got a good grip on the stock with his fists and his tongue with his teeth and lashed the animal's legs. The horse kicked as usual, struck the boy on the chin and cut his tongue off.

NERVY ARABS WANT GEN. DRUDE'S TOWN

Casablanca, Morocco, Aug. 17.—An ultimatum has been sent to General Drude commanding the foreign forces, by the Kabyles tribe, demanding the immediate surrender of the town. Failure to comply will result in a general attack by the Arabs in great force. The town will be destroyed and all the French put to death. Gen. Drude has sent no answer to the ultimatum.

HEAVY SHORTAGE CHARGED

New York, Aug. 17.—Charged with a $1,200 shortage, Robert H. Gill, cashier of the Stapleton, L. I. National bank, was arrested today. The directors made the shortage good. No explanation has been offered. Gill is a man of exemplary habits.

CAPTAIN DAVID CORDRAY IS ILL AT MANILLA, P. I.

WORD RECEIVED THAT FORMER NEWARK MAN WAS IN DI-VISION HOSPITAL.

LEFT 'FRISCO ON JUNE 5TH

May Be Taken to Hospital in Northern Luzon—Wife Is At Lake George, New York.

Mrs. Henry Cordray of North
Fourth street, received three letters
Friday morning from her son, Capt.
David P. Cordray, adjutant of the Twenty-sixth Regiment, United States Infantry, located at Manila, Philippine Islands, saying that he was very ill and was confined to the division hospital there.

The first letter was written July 6 and the last one written several days later said that the Newark soldier was somewhat improved. He is suffering from nervous exhaustion, according to the letters, and it was

CAPT. DAVID P. CORDRAY.

stated that the post commander had ordered his removal from the Manila hospital to a convalescent hospital in Northern Luzon, in the mountains some distance from Manila, where there is better air and cooler weather as soon as he was able to travel.

Captain Cordray sailed from San Francisco, Cal., on June 5 of this year. When he left the states he weighed 138 pounds and was not in the best of health. At the time the letters were written he had been reduced to 114 pounds.

Captain Cordray was in no condition to make the change at the time he was ordered to the Philippines with his regiment, but being a true soldier he sacrificed his health for his country and obeyed the order without offering a complaint.

Mrs. Cordray, wife of the young soldier, is with their infant son at a resort on Lake George, in New York. She has been notified of her husband's serious condition, and it is probable that either she or Mrs.
Henry Cordray of this city, will go to Manila soon to care for the sick man. It is also probable that Capt.
Cordray will get a sick leave and return to the States before very long, if his health will permit.

The many friends of the young man and of his parents here, will regret to learn of his illness and join in wishing him a speedy recovery.

LOST HIS LIFE FOR HIS PASSENGERS

Cleveland, O., Aug. 17.—When an elevator in the Card Building became unmanageable Denny Goldstein, the operator, lost his life in an attempt to save the passengers. While loaded to its capacity the elevator shot toward the roof, and Goldstein, realizing that it would break and fall back to the bottom, opened the door and tried to catch the switch rope. In doing so he lost his balance and fell seven stories. He died while being taken to the hospital.
Safety brakes stopped the car and the passengers escaped.

YOUNG MAN DIED FROM AN UNUSUAL DISEASE.

Zanesville, Aug. 17.—Roy C. Gro-hans, a hickory preserver and well known resident, died at the home of his father, T. H. Gibbons, on the East Pike Friday. Mr. Gibbons had taken ill about three weeks ago from pneumonia haemorrhagica, a most unusual disease, the usual type of which sufferers seldom recover. The disease first suffered from hemorrhages of the mouth and later upon the surface of the body. He was 36 years of age.

ENGAGEMENT OF MISS VAN ALLEN IS A SURPRISE

IS TO WED MME. NORDICA'S FOR-MER HUSBAND IN THE NEAR FUTURE.

WEDDING TO OCCUR SOON

Engagement Recalls Romance in Which Miss Van Allen Figured a Few Years Ago.

New York, Aug. 17.—Society had its greatest sensation in months today when it was reported that Miss May Van Allen, daughter of James J.
Van Allen and granddaughter of Mrs. Astor, is engaged to marry Herr Zoltan Doeme of Paris. He is identified here as the divorced husband of Mme. Lilhan Nordica. Miss Van Allen, it is stated, has written home from abroad to her father, asking that the engagement be announced in New York and Newport. The announcement recalled the romance of Miss Van Allen and Robert Redding Remington and its tragic ending. In 1902 Remington's engagement to Miss Van Allen was announced. Shortly afterward there came rumors that the engagement had been broken. Remington denied it, while Miss Van Allen and her father declined to talk.
While the gossipers were busy hashing over the reports, Remington was found dead in the Newport reading room with two bullet wounds in his head. The mystery of whether he had killed himself or been murdered was never cleared up.

In the reports of Miss Van Allen's present engagement no mention is made of who Doeme is. The only Zoltan Doeme known to New York society, however, is the former husband of Nordica. He is a Hungarian and married the great singer in Indianapolis in 1896. Three years ago they separated. Doeme has been abroad since. Miss Van Allen has likewise spent most of her time in Europe in the last few years, and it is supposed there met the Hungarian.

BABY WEIGHED TWO LBS. AT BELLVILLE

Bellville, O., Aug. 17.—While passing over Bellville Thursday, the stork called upon Mr. and Mrs. John Butler and presented them with a middle. This little baby was nine inches long and weighed two pounds when born, and is in the best of health, and has no deformity with the exception of being small. The father, John Butler, a blacksmith in the employ of Wm. Byers, says that the child is as healthy as any other child and has a good appetite. When first born it was impossible to feed the little boy, his head being no larger than a large egg and nourishment being impossible to get into its little mouth. The father is a very happy man, and thinks he will live to see this little boy grow a large and healthy man.

BIG RATTLER

Over Eight Feet Long Killed by Former Indiana Sheriff.

Columbus, Ind., Aug. 17.—Former Sheriff Samuel Parks, of Brown county, was hunting on Wellpatch hill yesterday, when he was attacked by a rattlesnake of enormous size.
With a club the former sheriff killed the ophidian after great effort.

The reptile was brought here for exhibition. It was eight feet and four inches in length. The number of rattles indicated that it was 12 years old.

POLITICAL AND FINANCIAL TROUBLES

That Now Confront and Greatly Disturb the Leaders of the Republican Party.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—As politics and business are inextricably mixed up at the present time more than ever before, so the behavior of men to keep their eyes open and watch the coming storm as it is being played. With Wall Street in a turmoil and the stock market sagging, and money even for legitimate business purposes hard to obtain, it does not require any guessing to say that there is greater financial trouble ahead. The building boom is quieting down and real estate improvements are being curtailed. So far those indications are mostly confined to the

HARRIMAN WANTS TO CONTROL LINES WOULD BE WHOLE WORKS OVER ALL ROADS

EDWARD H. HARRIMAN

Reno, Nev., Aug. 17.—In the course of an interview Edward Harriman, the railway magnate, said:

"All of the railroads in the country would be mine if I could get control of them. I have been quoted for an expression made jocularly to the effect that I would manage the railroads for the federal government; that I would turn my holding over to the United States for a fair compensation and act then as a commissioner." Mr. Harriman continued, "But I am misundestood. The time has not come for federal ownership. Personally, with all the lines in my possession, I would be better suited."

"What is your policy concerning the management of the railroads that we are told you own?" was asked.

"It is to pay dividends," came the decisive answer. "Since 1898 we have spent $300,000,000 for improvements.

We want some returns. Don't you think we are entitled to returns from such expenditure?" Mr. Harriman then, is a financial policy. I watch that end of the game. Other matters are left to the officials concerned with them.
There is not much to that policy better, except to make a good investment better. Results, they bring success."

"Agitation of the abuses on the railroads makes harder the accomplishment of local improvements. Facts that in themselves are insignificant are magnified and distorted by the public mind until they become harmful to the interests of the public and to us. It is the spirit of the age and the newspapers—so what can we do?"

The conference a day or two ago at Oyster Bay of the President, with Secretary Taft and other advisors, was to consider what could be done to prevent the Wall street disturbances from becoming epidemic and spreading all over the country. The continuation of the business boom is necessary for the salvation of the Republican party.
It has staked its all on continued prosperity which it arrogantly declares is due to its tariff and financial policies —breakdown, therefore, would probably bring political disaster.

It is reported that it was agreed by the conference that if it became necessary that Secretary Cortelyou should throw open the doors of the United States Treasury, and every free dollar that the vaults contain should be placed at the service of the New York banks. Whether the gold reserve of $150,000,000 is also to be trenched upon, in case of financial distress, is not known, but as everything goes with the present Republican Administration to gain its political ends, there is no reason to believe it will fear to override an act of Congress, if that is all there is between business and political trouble.

NO DOCTOR CALLED.

Mr. Vernon, Aug. 17.—Little Annie Reighart, the 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Reighart died Friday from cholera infantum without a physician being called in attendance. The parents are Hungarians and have only been in this country a few weeks.

BELL'S DEATH

Removes Last Surviving Member of the Second Confederate Congress.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 17.—Colonel Hiram Parks Bell, the last surviving member of the Second Confederate congress, died at his home here yesterday, aged 81 years. He opposed secession, but went with his state to the rank of colonel and was desperately wounded at the battle of Chickasaw Bayou in 1862. He resigned his command when elected to congress.
After the war he was elected to the United States congress. He always favored disunion and the secession and although dying he said:
"Thank God" when told that the legislature had this week saved the negro.

Five persons were injured and eleven others injured in the collapse of a two-story building at Chicago, occupied as a boarding house.

Missouri Pacific passenger train No.
165, southbound, went into the ditch near Buffalo, Mo. Fifteen persons were injured, some fatally.

ADVOCATE-AGE PARTY IS NOW HOMEWARD BOUND

THIS MORNING AFTER A DELIGHTFUL TRIP.

TRIP THROUGH CHINATOWN

Hudson River Trip to West Point was a Feature of Friday's Program.
Arrive Sunday.

(By Staff Correspondent.)

New York, Aug. 17.—Those members of the Advocate and Coshooton Age party who came on to New York after visiting Washington, Richmond and the Jamestown Exposition, started for home at 11:50 this noon, going by way of Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington and Grafton, on to Newark over the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. The young ladies who had greatly enjoyed the first ten days of the trip in company with the other members of the crowd who returned home on Thursday afternoon were delighted with the great city. They had first-class apartments on the first floor of the Marlborough, corner of Broadway and 36th street, at Herald Square and almost within a stone's throw of the famous Flatiron building. We looked about town the first afternoon and saw Eddie Foy in "The Orchid" in the evening. On Wednesday the girls took an automobile ride over the best residential section of New York, visited Central Park, Grant's tomb, Columbia university, and saw the homes of New York's many millionaires. This trip was followed by a shopping tour through some of the large stores and at night the girls were entertained at the Savooy theater, where "The Man of the Hour" was on the boards.

On Friday the party had a Hudson river ride going as far as West Point and returning in time by steamer to visit Chinatown, the Ghetto, the Bowery and the lower East Side in charge of a competent guide. Friday night they attended the Chinese theater and had a fine dinner at the Oriental restaurant.

This morning the girls went down to Wall street and the financial district on the elevated road, returning by the subway in time to catch the noon train for Newark.

If the train is on time the last of the Advocate-Age party will reach Newark at 7:35 Sunday morning.

CITY SOLICITOR CAN'T STOP WORK

Being Done by Supt. Clark of the Cleveland State Hospital—The Opinion.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 17.—Under an opinion from the attorney general's department, rendered yesterday, Superintendent Charles H. Clark, of the Cleveland State Hospital, has the right to employ the salaried men of his institution to do the necessary plumbing and pipe fitting for the new water supply. The city solicitor of Cleveland instructed Superintendent
Clark that he had no such right under the plumbers' license ordinance, as the hospital is located within the city limits. The opinion states that the ordinance is so inconsistent as to deprive a citizen of doing his own plumbing, regardless of how skilled he may be as a mechanic, and is therefore void. It is not disputed, though, that the city has the right to license the class of tradesmen provided in it. He is ordered to proceed with his work, thus ignoring the instructions of the city solicitor.
The city board of health, the opinion further states, has the power to inspect the work and make recommendations either during the progress of the work or at its completion.

BABY LIONS

At $100 Each Came to the Carnival at Mt. Vernon Friday.

Mt. Vernon, Aug. 17.—Five tiny lion cubs were yesterday found in one of the animal cages of the Great Parker Show and today the sensation among the show people has been equalled in the history of the show.

The value of the little lions as they are now is probably about $100 each, as the buyer takes an enormous risk in their living. After a few months growth the value of the lions will increase to $1000 and perhaps more.

A LINGERIE WAIST.

An exceedingly pretty waist is here shown, made of any of the summer materials. The above was a fine white and a centre-back closing. The blouse is attached to the yoke, having tucks down the back to give the suspender effect. A very neat design of eyelet embroidery in the yoke and collar helps very much, but this can be left out if desired. The sleeves are very short and full, having cuffs of the insertion. A three-quarter or long sleeve can be used.

The event being in the nature of a birthday celebration and was successfully planned by Mrs. Barrette and Mrs. Jennings. THE NEAT GIRL.

She Scores a Big Hit With the Average Man.

Men like fluffy women, oh, yes! They love trailing ribbons and ruffles and frilled parasols, but these must be immaculate.

You will excuse me for mentioning it, but lots of women don't realize this.

Yes, I know it takes a lot of money to dress that way and be immaculate.
It means that one's fripperies have to be renewed every other time. It really means that one ought not to walk

A CRISP WHITE SHIRT WAIST.

or go downtown, but just roll around in cabs to carry out the idea of the type.

That's why I say leave perishable finery alone and be a neat spick and span girl. She is even more attractive, I think, than the fluffy type. You have seen her many times. She wears a stiff, beautifully built hat, most scrupulously free from dust. Her hair glistens with its thorough brushing, and is carefully waved. A crisp white shirt waist and a tailor made stock show off her figure, while her smartly plaited, well hung skirt matches her hat and suggests an equally well tailored coat.

Her shoes and stockings are substantial, but dainty in their freshness. She fairly radiates sunshine and soap and water, and people turn around to look at her, not for her clothes, but for her self.

She is a contrast to all the other women with mussed waists, badly fastened down, with faded flower laden hats and ripped gloves lacking buttons or skirts that hang unevenly and gather the dust.

And I tell you that spick and span girl scores a great hit no matter where she is. ELINOR BATES.

COUNTRY HOMES.

Easier to Decorate Prettily Than Houses in the City.

The country home is well provided with large windows, and this allows of some very decorative effects.

Look at the picture, for instance.
This is a simple interior, yet it is charming, and may be reproduced at a slight expense.

You will readily see the keynote of the whole thing—the small paned Elizabethan window which opens outwardly.
The curtains on either side of this

LIVING ROOM IN COUNTRY HOUSE.

are in a rich shade of red, which is further carried out on the walls and in the fringe on the bronze lamp overhead.

There is a hand-some gilt mirror over the fireplace. The ornaments consist of a pair of silver gilt candlesticks, a clock and some old blue and white plates. The couch is of russet leather, with red cushions.
The rugs are of the same warm tints, and the many looks show this room is for use as well as for looks.

REYNOLDSBURG IS ONCE MORE HAPPY

Traction Cars Will Now Hesitate Thrice in Passing Through the Village.

General Manager Gibbs and Superintendent of Traffic Moore, of the Columbus, Newark & Zanesville Traction company met with the town council of Reynoldsburg Thursday night to discuss the establishing of another stop within the village limits. There was a full meeting of the council and several petitions from various persons were read asking that a new stop be established.

It is claimed by the council that the franchise under which the company operates its cars through the village specifies that there are to be three stops. Now this franchise is a very elastic affair as most of them are, and can be stretched with perfect ease in both directions. The company did at one time have three stops, but some time ago did away with one of them. The council now desires that this one be reestablished. The two traction officials agreed to have their cars stop at the Methodist church corner, the stop in question, after September 8. Thereupon the village solons went home and slept as men who have won a victory can sleep.

TAFT'S OHIO SPEECH

His Keynote as Candidate For Presidential Nomination.

FORAKER WILL REPLY TO IT

Political Situation Gets More Acute as Convention Time Approaches. National Rifle Shoot in Ohio This Year—Baldwin and Kinsman Are Candidates—State Affairs.

Columbus, O., Aug. 17.—Secretary Taft's speech in Columbus Monday night will be his keynote for his presidential candidacy. Mr. Taft would not talk politics after his conference with the president at Oyster Bay immediately after returning from Canada, and gave as his reason his intention to say all he has to say for the present about politics in his Columbus speech.

Ample preparations are made by the Buckeye Republican club of Columbus to make the Taft meeting a big success so far as attendance is concerned, leaving the rest to the secretary of war to complete in his speech.

Meanwhile Senator Foraker goes right on making speeches at every opportunity, and has not been lacking in opportunity. The political situation

B. W. BALDWIN.

In Ohio is gradually growing more acute, and the speeches Senator Foraker has arranged to make in reply to Secretary Taft's speech here Monday night forecast still more interesting developments as time wears on toward the Republican conventions next year in Ohio preceding the national convention.

Bernard W. Baldwin of Ashtabula, who was "mentioned" for lieutenant governor by a number of his former colleagues in the legislature, announced that he would not seek that place, but would be a candidate for member of the state board of public works, to which office he was appointed by Governor Harris for an unexpired term.

Senator Thomas Kinsman of Trumbull county, it is said, despite a conflicting report, will be a candidate for state treasurer.

The national rifle shoot beginning Monday at the state range of the Ohio National Guard near Port Clinton, will continue two weeks, there being 40 competing teams. This is the shootoff heretofore held at Sea Girt, N. J., but was transferred this year to Ohio on account of the splendid rifle range provided by the state for the Ohio National Guard on the shore of Lake Erie, in Ottawa county. An effort will be made to have these national rifle contests at Camp Perry every year.

The Eighth regiment, which goes into camp Sunday, together with company G, Ada, Second regiment, which did not care to go to Jamestown with the regiment, will do the scoring for the national shoot. The entire hospital and signal corps will also be on duty. The signal men will operate the telephones from the hospital butts to the firing line and the hospital corps will take care of the sick and be responsible for the sanitation.

The last regimental camp on the grounds will begin Sept. 7, when the Fifth, with headquarters in Cleveland, goes in. The same date the Second, from northwestern Ohio, and the battalion of engineers from Cleveland will start for the Jamestown exposition, where they will go into camp. They will be there Ohio day and act as escort for Governor Harris, who will attend with his staff, state officers and members of the legislature.

A conference of representatives of the Ohio Shippers' association and the furnace men with the state railway commission and Assistant Attorney General W. H. Miller was held at the attorney general's office behind closed doors. The purpose of the conference was to determine upon some mode of procedure to compel 19 of the 38 railroads operating in Ohio to respect and observe the car service rules and regulations promulgated some time ago by the railroad commission and which became effective Aug. 1. The 19 roads referred to observe the rules only in part, applying them to their interstate commerce business, but refusing to apply them to their intrastate business, while the commission is insisting upon its application to all business of whatever kind or character.

It was decided to begin legal proceedings against the delinquent companies. A circular letter, explaining the situation, was sent to about 5,000 shippers in the state by the Ohio Shippers' association, and requesting that complete information be sent to the office immediately regarding all cars on which the railroads attempt to collect car service charges under the old railroad rules, which the order of the commission put out of effect Aug. 1. From this information the shippers' attorneys will determine a plan of procedure, which will be recommended to the state law department. It is reported that many shippers are effectively applying the suggestion of their association that all possible freight be given to roads applying the state car service rules to interstate as well as intrastate traffic.

The G. A. R. posts, U. V. L. Sons of Veterans, Spanish War Veterans, Old Guard and all the other patriotic societies in Franklin county are planning to make a home-coming day for their comrades and the boys in the first week of September. Chairman Thomas T. Smith and Secretary William A. Taylor, in behalf of the Grand Army general committee, sent out letters addressed to the commanders of all the various posts, chapters and camps of the three wars, the presidents of the Soldiers and Sailors, Ex-Prisoners of War and like associations and like bodies in all the Franklin county towns to name at once not less than two persons to serve on the reception committee on behalf of the G. A. R., U. V. L., etc., home-coming day. It is quite possible that home-coming Grand Army men and other military orders will reach into the thousands, and that the occasion will be memorable in all respects.

Interest in the prize drills for civic organizations is growing. The Modern Woodmen expect to have a dozen of their best teams entered and will try to make a clean sweep. Other orders have taken up the contest through state officers and are beginning to "get busy." The official schedule and rules for the drill have been prepared by Colonel John C. L. Pugh, the officer in charge of organizations. After the inspection each company is given 30 minutes to complete the prescribed drill. This includes 44 movements in tactics and 16 in the sword manual. If time remains, it may be devoted to special movements. No movements can be repeated, except after the schedule is finished and with consent of the judges. Drilling will be without music and except where specified to the contrary will be in quick time. The drills will be held in an open space inside the race track, directly in front of the grand stand, and probably at such time as will least interfere with attention to the race program. Entries close Aug. 28.

Notice of application for the pardon of John Taborn, the oldest prisoner in point of servitude in the penitentiary, was signed by the prosecuting attorney of Delaware county. In spite of the fact that Taborn says he is quite satisfied in his present condition an effort to secure his release from the state prison will be made at the next meeting of the board of pardons in October. Taborn was sent to the penitentiary 37 years ago on a life sentence for killing a man during a quarrel. At that time he was 22 years old. Since he entered the penitentiary two presidents of the United States have been assassinated. The telephone has been invented and electric cars have superseded the horse cars. Taborn has no idea of the meaning of a skyscraper and the things that are most common to people who have been witnesses of the marvelous developments of the age would make this imprisoned man believe that he was altogether in another world. The outside world is scarce a recollection to him. He has outlived his acquaintances and so far as any one knows he is without a living relative on the face of the earth. For more than a score of years he has occupied a place in the prison asylum, where he has diverted his mind with various employments. He is supplied with a tool chest with which he makes various articles. His case is a puzzle to the prison officials, who are not convinced whether he really wishes to spend his few remaining days within or without the walls. Taborn is partly of colored descent and may perhaps have some Indian blood in his veins.

It is expected that over a million dollars will be collected by the state this year through the operation of the Willis law tax to one-tenth of 1 percent on the subscribed capital stock of foreign and domestic corporations doing business in the state. Last year the total collections in the secretary of state's office from this source were $832,375.2, which broke all records. All that have not paid will be certified to the attorney general, who will undertake collection, with heavy penalties added. At the same time notices will be sent to the foreign corporations. They are expected to pay during September. The Willis tax from domestic corporations last year was $657,473.22. This year's receipts will exceed $800,000.

Governor Harris will be one of the guests of honor and will speak at the reunion of the Sherman brigade at Shelby, Aug. 27-29. Senator Dick will also be one of the speakers. The Sherman brigade took an active part in the field during the civil war. It consisted of the Sixty-fourth Ohio volunteer infantry, the Sixty-fifth Ohio volunteer infantry, McLaughlin's cavalry, and the Sixth Ohio battery. The brigade was commanded in the field by General Thomas Ward, General James A. Garfield, and General Charles G. Harber.

Dr. E. E. Arnold, for the last three years day physician at the Ohio penitentiary, resigned to assume his new duties as medical examiner to the Pennsylvania railway, with headquarters in this city. He will be succeeded temporarily by Dr. H. R. Garrett of Columbus. A regular successor will be named at a meeting of the board of managers, to be held in September.

By Hook Or Crook.

By TROY ALLISON.

Copyrighted, 1907, by P. C. Eastmont.

"Fishing," said Randolph reflectively, his eyes fixed hypnotically on the blue and white bob dancing on the waters of the creek, "is the most fascinating pursuit of mankind."

The girl had braced her pole in the crook of an alder branch and was pinning her white linen skirt to clear her trim ankles.

"I believe I have heard that men were more fascinated by the pursuit than by—well, you ought to be very happy on that theory," she said, peering into the empty basket at his feet.

"You just wait—that fly is a wonder and will soon have 'em taking notice."

"But you've promised to catch enough for dinner, and there are ten hungry girls and ten voracious men that can eat like a circus menagerie—to say nothing of the chaperons."

"I'll not try to catch enough to go round; I hate chaperons." He jerked

"Hold on tight!—I've got you!" his pole up and down vindictively.

"We've been camping for four days and this is the first minute I've had you to myself. Four chaperons are entirely too many for twenty people; that's four-tenths of a chaperon to a couple—too rich for my system."

"And what, may I ask, is your system?" She made a grab at her pole, which had gradually slipped half its length into the creek.

"Dora Newton, you have a most irritating habit of playing with a man's words—and with his heart," he said, his eyes fixed on her fine young arms, bared to the elbow.

"I wasn't playing. I was earnestly seeking information—the desire for knowledge is strong within me—and I really wanted to know your system."

She landed a tiny perch and helplessly held the rod for him to take the quivering fish off the hook.

He put the fish in the basket, and they regarded the lack of proportion of basket and fish gravely.

"It needs to be illustrated," he said solemnly, "not the fish, but the system. I could teach it to you."

"I don't know that you are a qualified teacher." She cast her hook in a puzzle that made her line cross Randolph's.

"Professor Jordan is coming down tomorrow to stay in camp with us two days," and the inference was that Professor Jordan, as a teacher, could not be disappointed.

"Humph! The old fossil!" granted Randolph.

"Fossil? He's not more than forty—and he certainly is a man of brains."

"Your tone, Miss Newton, intimates that I am a mere matter of physical bulk, and you are further aggravating me by getting your line tangled in mine just as I was about to have a bite."

She cast her line in a new spot with a sudden show of humility.

"Well, you see, I hadn't realized that you had attained the degree of psychic development necessary to tell—when a fish was about to bite."

"Personally," he continued, "Professor Jordan bores me immensely. Think I'll run up to town for the two days he intends to illuminate the camp with his intellectual light. Would you mind telling me if you are going to marry that dried up Greek root?" He drew in his line and fixed it for deeper water.

"He hasn't asked me—yet," with a toss of her head that intimated she was prepared for future developments.

"I didn't know my vacation was to be spoiled by that old-dinosaur." He was delighted that he remembered the word.

"Is he really so bad as all that?" Sounds three or four shades wickeder than a Greek root, but I am glad you are at least generous enough to credit him with versatility."

"Doesn't make any difference which head you classify my under. If he's coming here to spoil the party I might as well go back to town and stay. I asked you to marry me seven times last winter and couldn't even get you to look at the matter seriously—thought maybe all this scenery and the moonlight nights and the—er—hammocks would develop a little sentiment in your soul, but if there's another man in the case I have nothing more to say."

"So hammocks are included in your system? I never sat in a hammock with Professor Jordan," reflectively.

"I could really imagine no greater joy than—a hammock and the fossilized Jordan," he said sarcastically.

"I have to thank you for the suggestion," sirily. "When you are in town tomorrow night, gasping for a breath of cool air, don't think you are entirely forgotten. I shall be remembering your idea and trying the hammock. The moonlight here is fascinating," she murmured irrelevantly.

His pole dipped down with an unexpected jerk, and with the effort to catch it his foot slipped on the edge of the bank, and he found himself suddenly floundering in the creek. He caught one glimpse of the girl's horrified eyes, and, with an inspiration heaven born or wicked, according to the point of view, he remembered the trick he had learned in boyhood and disappeared from her sight.

She stood motionless, her hands clasped convulsively to her breast. When he came to the surface near her, spluttering and gasping with more energy than an expert on the subject would have pronounced natural, she dropped on her knees and clutched him by the arm.

"Oh, Dickey," she screamed, throwing her little young body on the edge of the creek and reaching her other hand to him, "hold on—tight—I've got you!"

Randolph, dripping wet, scrambled up the bank and helped her to her feet.

"I—caught you," she reiterated dazedly, clutching each wet sleeve with nervous fingers, her face white and tremulous.

"You poor little girl, I didn't know you would be as frightened as this," he said contritely, unhesitatingly putting his arm around the crisp white shirt waist.

"I thought you were—d—dead," she stammered, and Randolph, looking in her eyes, was satisfied with his system.

"Dora," he said finally, the last lingering touch of jealousy dying hard, "you never loved that dried Greek root, did you?"

She freed one hand and stroked the damp hair from his forehead. "I like them—wet," she gurgled, "but come, let's run for the camp before you catch your death of cold."

"Humph! Much danger of cold in this weather?"

When they reached the camp ten minutes later there were many derisive exclamations from the hammocks, and cards and novels were dropped for newer interest.

"Of all the earthly spectacles!" shouted the irrepressible brother of Dora, throwing a pack of cards on the rustic table with such energy that they scattered over the grass. "Have you been diving for shellfish?"

"And where, may I ask, are the fish? We've been waiting dinner for them," called Mrs. Bradley, the chaperon most to be feared.

"Dickey"—Dora's voice was an agonized whisper—"for the love of heaven try to distract their attention until I can slip into the tent—there's a wet streak across my back where your arm—er—"

"Darling!" whispered Randolph fatuously. Then, walking rapidly forward, he bowed low to Mrs. Bradley.

He opened the basket where the lone little perch had long since given up the struggle for existence.

"Here, madam, is your fish," he said humbly.

Both Green.

"Wanted, at once, a rough carpenter, 7 shillings a day. Apply J. Morris, Onehunga." This advertisement caught my eye one morning, says the author of "Adrift in New Zealand," when I had been some weeks in the antipodes and thought it time to cast about for work. The 7 shillings appealed to me, and, as the advertiser did not say how rough the carpenter was to be, I decided to apply at once to Mr. J. Morris. I applied and got the job.

In spite of my conceit, however, I felt very nervous when the day arrived on which I had to begin my work. I was at the appointed place a full half hour before my time, tramping up and down in front of two empty houses, wondering what I would have to do to them.

At 8 o'clock my fellow worker arrived, and after a critical survey of me asked if I were the new man, and on my explaining that I was he had the impertinence to inquire if I knew anything about carpentering. I was puzzled.

"No," I answered very sharply. "Neither do I," he replied as cheerfully as could be and swung open a gate and walked into an empty house. From that moment we were fast friends.

A Sense of Duty.

Just before the boat capsized Rees Rees had been boasting of his "practical common sense."

"I am nothing if not a man of practical common sense," he averred. "When there is a difficulty to be solved Rees Rees is the man to solve it."

Then when the boat sank Rees' fellow excursionist, John Jones, found that the plank to which both clung was unequal to the support of their united weight. At this juncture he remembered his companion's boast.

"Prove yewer practical common sense now, Rees!" he pleaded, with true Welsh eloquence. "Eu are a single man, with noboddy dependent on eu. I am married an' got six shildren. If eu drowns noboddy do suffar. But if I do drown then there iss my aife an' six little shildren to starve, an' yewer practical common sense do tell eu that iss better for eu to drown than me. Prove yewer practical common sense, Rees, an' let go the plank—orr I will push eu off it!"—Dundee Advertiser.

AUTO HACKS AND DELIVERY WAGONS IN CHILLICOTHE

Mr. Fred Sites, formerly of the Advocate, spent Friday in Chillicothe. He states that automobile hacks and delivery wagons are used almost exclusively and that the users of same claim they are a great economy over horses. Chillicothe is not so large or as good a town as Newark, and Mr. Sites thinks some of our merchants ought to give the plan a trial.

GYPSIES FOND OF TURKEY MEAT

THEY STOLE 27 BIRDS NEAR CROTON AND NOW ONE IS IN JAIL.

Don Robinson and E. W. Roberts Chased Thieves Several Miles and Recovered the Birds.

Croton, Aug. 17.—Farmers in this vicinity have been missing poultry for several nights and the presence of two wagons of nomadic people aroused the suspicions of the victims of the night thieves. Thursday these two wagons passed through Croton with chicken coops under the beds of the wagon. Thursday night Don Robinson and E. W. Roberts, living near here, missed their turkeys. Robinson lost five full grown birds he had been watching carefully, awaiting the advent of Turkey Day in November. Roberts lost an old turkey hen with about 20 half grown young ones.

Both men started after the gypsies, thinking they were the guilty parties. They were overhauled near Johnstown and Mr. Robinson recovered his five turkeys intact, alive and well, but Roberts was not so fortunate. The old turkey hen was still among the living, not yet having been sacrificed.

Robinson was paid $1 for his trouble and to secure immunity from arrest. Roberts could not effect a settlement, so he went to Squire Shafer at Croton and charged "John Smith" with stealing his turkeys. The man was brought into court by Constable M. R. Baker, found guilty and was fined $10 and costs and given ten days in the county jail at Newark. The constable brought his prisoner to Newark Saturday afternoon.

Picnic of Fredonia Masons.
The annual picnic of Fredonia lodge of Masons was held at Cat Run, a short distance north of Granville, and as usual there was a large attendance, there being over 1000 persons present to enjoy the festivities of the occasion. Splendid music was furnished for the occasion by the Chatham brass band and refreshments were served to all present. Addresses were made by Attorneys C. L. Flory and B. R. Nott of Newark, and Col. Isaac DeBow of Granville.

THE RIGHT MEDICINE FOR PELVIC TROUBLES FOUND IN PER-UNA.

MRS. CAROLINE KRAMER. Fort Collins, Col., writes: "The majority of women who are suffering from disordered periods and other pelvic troubles, have such strong faith in doctors that they allow them to experiment on them for kidney, liver or stomach troubles until they become completely discouraged and their money is gone."

"This was my unfortunate experience for nearly two years when my attention was called to Peruna."

"I hardly dared believe that at last I had found the right medicine, but as I kept on using it and was finally cured, I could only thank God and take courage."

"I have had most satisfying results from the use of your medicine and have advised dozens of women who were suffering with woman's ills to use Peruna and let the doctors alone."

"Those who followed my advice are better today and many are fully restored to health."

Mrs. Wilda Moores, R. F. D., No. 1, Lents, Ore., writes:

"For the past four years I was a wretched woman, suffering with severe backaches and other pains, leaving me so weak and weary that I was only with difficulty that I was able to attend to my household duties."

"I used different remedies, but found no relief until I had tried Peruna."

"Within two weeks there was a change for the better and in less than three months I was a well and happy woman."

"All the praise is due to Peruna."

PYROGRAPHY

Has nothing to do with pies. They are artistic (pies, we mean), if skillfully constructed and properly baked, and appeal to our inner as well as our materialistic instincts. So does pyrography. Each has its proper place in the every day domestic economy of civilized life. Pies beautify the dining room, pyrography the dining room, the den and the parlor. Pies grow stale unless promptly eaten. Pyrography never grows stale and is a never ending delight. It produces the most beautiful home ornaments at the least possible cost.

Pyrography means the burning of pictures and ornamental designs in to wood. Learn "Get the Habit." From it you get constant pleasure, and if you wish, financial profit.

The A. L. Norton Co. has the largest stock of pyrographic material ever displayed in Newark and at prices never heard heretofore.

It is always a pleasure to us to show our goods, whether you buy or not.

ARRESTED ON A SERIOUS CHARGE

Joseph Boner Draws 30 Days in Jail for Enticing Little Girls From Home.

Charlie Foster, a young colored boy, hailing from Atlanta, Ga., was brought before Mayor McCleery Saturday morning on a warrant charging him with train riding. Foster claimed to be on his way to Cincinnati, where he has friends. He will not go for several days, as he drew a prize of $5 and costs for failing to buy a ticket. No money—stone pile.

Patrick O'Brien, whose face is not a strange one in police court, was up on the same old charge, too much hilarity. Patrick stated to the mayor that he was getting up in years and could not stand as much of the liquid that is supposed to cheer as he could in younger days. Five dollars and costs for Patrick.

Joseph Boner was arrested on a serious charge, the complainant being Mrs. Laura Williams. She charged Boner with inducing her little 10-year-old girl and several others of lesser years, to go bathing with him in the creek in North Newark. The parties, who reside on North street, were all present in court, and after hearing the evidence Mayor McCleery fined Boner $5 and costs and gave him 30 days in jail.

Another thing is the fact that the men who push push and call down specialty advertising as ineffective and expensive fast become back numbers, and soon are regarded as old timers or drop out altogether. The team will return to Newark tonight and tomorrow will play the fast Champs of Youngstown. They will also play them a double header Monday. The fans should make an effort to turn out in force and root for the home boys. This will be the last opportunity you will have of witnessing a game or games between the O. P. league, as only one more game is scheduled, and that will be played at Youngstown Sept. 6.

Turn out, boys and fans, and see what a lot of good rooting will do towards winning from the Giants.

SOLICITING COMMITTEE MEETING WITH SUCCESS

A committee is circulating a petition among the professional men of Newark asking that they close their places of business on Monday afternoon so that all may witness the double header at Wehrle Park, with the Champs of Youngstown.

This will be the last opportunity our people will have of witnessing a contest between the two fast clubs as only one more game will be played with them and that occurs at Youngstown, September 6.

The Newark ball club has done much toward advertising our hustling and beautiful city, and is deserving of hearty support and we are sure they will receive it, as the soliciting committee is meeting with good success.

CLEVELAND GETS DAUBERT

Marion, Aug. 17.—Jake Daubert, Marion's first baseman, was sold yesterday to Cleveland for $1200 and Scotty Ingerston of Albany, who will return here next year.

GRINNED, LOST TEETH THEN LOST GAME

New Castle supporters and admirers of Rube Bowers will now say that there was something wrong with the great southpaw Thursday. And there really was. Rube lost his false teeth on his way to Sharon. He was leaning his head out of the window when he spread his mouth from ear to ear in a two by twice grin. Out dropped the teeth. Something also dropped at Independent park.

STOVALL IS BACK WITH THE NAPS

Cleveland, Aug. 17.—George Stovall is again a member in good standing of the Cleveland baseball club. Down in Washington, a few days ago, Manager Lajoie declared that Stovall could never again be a member of the Cleveland team while he was manager. It is not likely that there has come to Larry since that declaration was made any change of heart. Stovall's attack upon him was not of a nature to prompt a speedy pardon.

But Lajoie has put the welfare of the team before the personal feelings. No matter how strongly he may feel that he has a moral as well as a professional right to bar Stovall from the Cleveland team, he realizes that the Naps' chances for the pennant have a prior right, and that he must do what is best for his employers, his fellow players and the patrons of the game.

THE RED LEGS WANT BUNNY PEARCE BADLY

It is to be hoped that President Herrmann will get hold of young Pearce, the Newark catcher signed by the Reds, and send him along. Pearce is a fast man, with a good arm and very highly recommended by competent judges, and this would be an excellent time for him to get a thorough try-out.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Manager Berryhill received a letter from President Herrmann this morning, stating that they were badly in need of a backstop, and asking him to send Pearce to Cincinnati. Bob replied that he couldn't spare Bunny at present as we are also badly crippled.

MELANGE OF SPORT.

Rain, no game yesterday. There will be a double header today.

A large crowd is expected from Columbus.

There will be a double header with the Champs Monday.

A great many of the business and professional men will close their places of business Monday to take in the game with the fast boys from the Mahoning Valley.

The game was postponed at Lancaster Friday on account of wet grounds. A number of fans who went over to Lank town were badly disappointed. They went out to the ball grounds and state that the grounds were dry enough to have had a game.

The Senators are slowly edging toward the top in the American Association race. They won yesterday from St. Paul while Toledo lost to Minneapolis.

The White Sox defeated Washington in a 10-inning game yesterday and Detroit lost to New York, and as a consequence are forced back to third position.

That is a pretty rare in the American League. Philadelphia has won 62 and lost 40 games; Chicago has won 64 and lost 44; Detroit has won 56 and lost 41. There is only 18 points difference between the leaders and Detroit. In the O. P. league there is only 14 points difference between the leaders and the team holding third position.

Manager Bob Berryhill is on the sick list. He has been under the weather for several days and did not accompany the team to Lancaster.

Jack Compton left Friday for his home in the country near Lancaster and will not rejoin the Champs until his sore shoulder is right. Jack felt no ill effects from pitching last Friday against Mansfield until a couple of days later, when his arm became so sore he could scarcely raise it. It is possible that Compton will not get into the game this season.

Battling Nelson's mother wants the Dane to give up the ring and invest his money in an amusement park in Hegewisch, Ill. Nelson is still on the Pacific coast. It probably would be wise for him to follow his mother's advice.

Dan O'Leary, the famous long-distance pedestrian, announces that his 1,000-mile walk against time, which was to have taken place in Newport on Labor Day, will not be started until September 8. O'Leary will try to go the 1,000 miles in 1,000 hours.

Umpire Jack Sheridan is out with his annual announcement that he is to retire from baseball at the end of the season.

Lajoie says he will play first base for the Cleveland until the club finds a better man. He may have to wait some time.

Jude reported to Hanover at Milwaukee and was told by that gent to hike back to Columbus. "The deal for you and McClesney is off," said Doyle. It is presumed that Hanover wouldn't sanction the exchange.

A large number of enthusiasts in automobiles left Saturday noon for Lancaster to attend the ball game.

Five weeks from Saturday, the O and P season ends.

Reds want Pearce right away but Newark needs him in its business.

The Chaps have 40 games to play, 22 at Willis Park and 18 are on foreign soil.

If only there were a few more Armstrongs sprinkled around through the O. and P. league Youngstown would draw cellar honors.

They say Servatius is at Lancaster, while the officials of the Lancaster ball club were trying to fix up a deal.

If Newark plays the kind of ball during the Easterners' invasion that was put up while the up-state clans were invading before and then breaks even in the East look out for the Molders. Where, oh where, is Servatius? is Youngstown's lament. The Spanish slugger is as hard to round up in the Champ camp as was his fellow countryman, Cervera, in the harbor of Santiago.

John Boyle, one of the directors of the Sharon team, said yesterday that they will get a winning ball club in Sharon if it costs $5,000. Sharon would like to secure the release of Will Thomas, the outfielder of the Youngstown team in the O. and P. league.

The bay gelding Berico, winner of the Queen City stake for 2 1/2 horses at the Grand Circuit track at Poughkeepsie, is a graduate from the stable of a Lutterer cart. Bred by Frederick P. Olcott, president of the Central Trust company of New York city, he was sold for $165 a few years ago, and went to work delivering rib roasts and potterhouse steaks to summer residents of the Jersey shore.

Bradcock has dropped from the P. O. M. It is the first step towards the downfall of that league. Big salaries for players is the cause.

John Servatius has been located in Lancaster, where he has been since being let down by the Columbus club. He wants to stay there, too.

The league race is getting to be a merry one. Newark, Youngstown and Akron are the chief factors and they are making the dust fly. There is an excellent collection of greenwarths in this organization who are furnishing first-class entertainment for the fans.

Jude got back to St. Paul in time to help the Senators make it three out of four from the Sain. Hope he hits a home run from now on. It would help the old catch Toledo.

The attendance at Youngstown has been poor. The people are not supporting the club as they should. Since the Champs have not been in the lead the people have not turned out well. One day last week but 150 people were out to see the game.

"Winona," an English homing pigeon belonging to Harry Lathrop of Warsaw, Ind., which was stolen from the Adams Express office in Randolph, Tex., while en route to Abilene, Tex., 12 months ago, put in an appearance at the Lathrop home on Friday, having traversed 800 miles.

Reports have it that the Youngstown baseball club has lost $6000 on the season up to date. The purchasing of star men and the paying of big prices, along with the building of the new park, are said to be the cause.

A PLAYER MUST BE A LIGHTNING CIRCULATOR

When an outfielder sprints 40 yards at top speed in less than five seconds, keeps his eye on a flying ball and grasps it with both hands as easily and gracefully as if he were picking a ripe blackberry off a vine, few persons who are watching the game consider that he has done anything wonderful. As a matter of fact he has performed a feat which is simply marvelous, says Hugh Fullerton in the Chicago Times. Think even of running that far at such speed! Think of keeping an object which is flying through the air at the rate of 50 feet a second in view! Think of calculating at one glance where the flying speck will fall and then being there to meet it, and if you have some idea of the difficulties which every outfielder must meet half a dozen times perhaps in one afternoon.

It would take a professor of mathematics half an hour, perhaps, to figure out where a sphere of a certain weight, struck by an object of a certain weight and driven at a given angle would reach a point.

Any outfielder, even in a minor league, makes the calculation in a fraction of a second. He doesn't do it by geometry, but by instinct.

NEWARK MEN ON THE RIFLE TEAM OF FOURTH REGT.

Seventy-eight local members of the Ohio National Guard will go to Camp Perry, Port Clinton, Sunday, in two special cars over the T. & O. C. railway, to remain from one to two weeks. In the part will go Colonel C. S. Ammel, commanding the Fourth regiment and Lieutenant Colonel Byron L. Bargar, late of the Fourth. Both are range officers. With them will go the team to represent the Fourth regiment in the state competition.

Sergeants Mason J. Monnett and Foster Davis of Newark are members of the team.

One result of the Austrian's love of gambling is the sum of $150,000 which the ministry of finance derived last year from the tax on playing cards.

It has been stated that most of the material exported from Japan is made by the women of the nation.

Some people are so perfectly straight that they never unbend.

NO GAME TODAY

(Bulletin.)
Lancaster, O., Aug. 17.—Today's Newark and Lancaster games have been called off. Rain is falling and the Newark team left for home on an early afternoon car.

AS USUAL NEWARK SHOOTERS ARE IN IT

The Chillicothe Gun club held a tournament in that city Friday afternoon and John Taylor, of this city, carried off the honors, making the highest score. Rolla Heikes was second. Fred King would probably have won the amateur trophy had he stayed the tournament out. The Newark shooters report a good time at the match in the capital of Ross.

WEDDINGS.

SEELBACH-CHAPPELL.
One of the most enjoyable social events of the summer was the wedding of Louis Seelbach and Mary Chappell, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Chappell on Wednesday. The impressive ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. C. Glover.

The bride was attended by Miss Abanna Hyler of Chicago, O., and Miss Frances Stevens of Newark. The groomsmen were Mr

Goes to Washington Next Week to Lay Matter Before Interstate Commission.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 17.—Clark C. Doughty, manager of the Ohio Excursion bureau, will go to Washington next week to make a complaint before the interstate commerce commission concerning the Pennsylvania railroad. Mr. Doughty has made a specialty of newspaper parties visiting the Jamestown exposition, and the Pennsylvania, he claims, underbid him for some business in northern Ohio, on a party of about 75 from various cities. His contention is that the Pennsylvania at the rate it made, paying hotel bills, to make up the regular excursion rate on Jamestown business. This, if true, would make the company virtually guilty of rebating.

Mayor Tom in Wreck.
Cleveland, O., Aug. 17.—An east-bound Euclid avenue car crashed into an automobile containing Mayor Johnson, A. B. Du Pont, president of the Municipal Traction company, and Arthur Fuller, chauffeur. The mayor and his companions escaped death by inches only. Mayor Johnson charges that the motorman, Herman F. Fletcher, deliberately ran him down. Fletcher was placed under arrest.

Attorneys Allege Conspiracy.
Toledo, O., Aug. 17.—The Ohio Savings Bank and Trust company filed in the United States district court its declaration of intention to carry the case of the confirmation of the sale of the Toledo Terminal railroad to the circuit court of appeals. Attorneys for the unsecured creditors of the belt railroad declare they have unearthed further evidence of a conspiracy to defraud creditors.

Leaps Into Scalding Water.
Zanesville, O., Aug. 17.—James McNellis, unmarried, committed suicide at his boarding house here by diving into a bathtub filled with scalding water. Death was practically instantaneous. When the horribly scalded body of McNellis was found a rosary still remained clasped in his hands. For weeks McNellis has been despondent.

Lost Life on Rail.
Mt. Vernon, O., Aug. 17.—Fay, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Auten, was run over and killed by a Baltimore & Ohio freight train near Fredericktown. Young Auten, with a number of companions, was trying to get on the moving train when he lost his balance and fell under the wheels, crushing his head from his body.

Girl a Suicide.
Columbus, O., Aug. 17.—Rather than face disgrace which would soon be brought upon her, Wanda Ruth Clark, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Clark, chose death by her own hand. The girl had been despondent for the last two weeks and had attempted suicide by asphyxiation several weeks ago.

Infant Cremated.
Marietta, O., Aug. 17.—The fad of making little trains out of pasteboard boxes and lighting them with candles, cost the life of little six-year-old Willard Smith. While playing in this manner, his clothes caught fire, and he was burned to a crisp.

Farmer Killed by Train.
McConnelsville, O., Aug. 17.—The mangled remains of J. M. Ellis, a Windsor township farmer, were found on the trestle in Malta, O. He was probably run down by freight during the night. His head was severed from his body.

Society Swell in Toils.
Lima, O., Aug. 17.—C. C. Fookes, a young society man, married, and an employee of the Standard Oil's office here, is under arrest in Chicago, charged with being the leader of a gang that has been burglarizing jewelry stores.

Crushed to Death.
Steubenville, O., Aug. 17.—Perry Ramsey, 24, of Powhatan, a C. & P. railroad brakeman in the Carnegie mill yards at Mingo Junction, was caught and crushed to death between a cut of cars.

Head Caught in Cable.
Ashtabula, O., Aug. 17.—Andrew Johnson, a machine operator in the ore mills here, had one-half of his head sawed away by having it caught in a wire cable. He died instantly.

Wets Lose Bainbridge.
Chillicothe, O., Aug. 17.—The victory of Bainbridge is dry again. The election in Paxton being carried by the drys by a vote of 101 to 97.

A Valuable Lesson.
"Six years ago I learned a valuable lesson," writes John Pleasant, of Magnolia, Ind. "I then began taking Dr. King's New Life Pills, and the longer I take them the better I find them." The place everybody should start at F. D. Hall's drug store, 25c.

New York City has provided new day houses for 586,000 tenants during the last five years.

SLEPT ON TRACKS.
Zanesville, Aug. 17.—The lifeless body of John Ellis, 45 years of age and a resident of Stockport, was found across the B. & O. railroad tracks at Malta Friday. The body was terribly mangled, the head, both feet and one arm being severed by the wheels of a train. The discovery was made by Henry Wilson, a flagman of the railroad company.

Ellis made his home in Stockport, but the last three days had been spent in Malta. At 10 o'clock on Thursday evening he was seen on the street of that place and was thought to have been in a somewhat intoxicated condition. After that time but one train passed through the town, at about 12 o'clock, and under the wheels of this freight Ellis doubtless met his death.

NEARLY FROZE TO DEATH

Youngstown, O., Aug. 17.—John Smith, a farm hand employed by William Shull, was almost frozen to death with the temperature 89 degrees in the shade.

There had been company at the house on the day, and after ice cream having been made Smith was sent to the ice house with the remainder to put there. The family left in the afternoon and when they returned eight hours later at about midnight they found that some of the chores had not been done. They instituted a search for the man and found him more dead than alive in the ice house the door of which had blown shut after he entered it.

MANY BALLOONS WERE GIVEN AWAY TODAY

There wasn't a circus or a carnival in Newark on Saturday, but a stranger might have thought so, for every woman and child that visited the Powers-Miller store on Church street, Saturday, were presented with a brilliantly colored toy balloon, and as they paraded the streets of the city it looked like circus day.

Five thousand of the toys were given away to the customers. The window display of the balloons as mentioned in the Advocate last night, attracted much attention.

SECRET SOCIETIES

K. & L. of S.
Golden Rod Council, No. 442, is very busily engaged in boosting their first outing which will be given Tuesday, August 27, on the Muskingum river. The ticket committee have already placed a large number of tickets and all members desiring tickets should see Brothers A. G. Smith at postoffice; George Land, the drayman; or E. B. Stewart, at Trust building. These tickets will also be for sale at the Truman drug store after Monday, August 19.

On next Friday night it is desired that each member bring a friend or two and come to lodge promptly at 8 o'clock as there will be "something doing." After council adjourns.

All members selling excursion tickets must report number sold next Friday night or to Brother Smith by the following Monday.

August 27 Is the Day.
Owing to a slight misunderstanding on the part of the Muskingum Valley Transportation company the date of the river excursion under the auspices of Golden Rod Council, No. 442, K. & L. of S., has been changed to Tuesday August 27, instead of Thursday, August 29, as previously announced.

The book has been chartered for that day and the ticket committee now have tickets on hand for those who desire them. George Land, the drayman, or August G. Smith, registry clerk at postoffice, will supply lodge members and friends with tickets at any time.

This is the first Muskingum river excursion of the season from Newark and should be well patronized. Dancing will be one of the features of the trip and the beautiful river scenery will be of interest to all those who do not care to dance.

The round trip rate for this lovely outing of 110 miles is $1.00. Special cars will leave Interurban station at 7:45 a. m., and returning leave Zanesville at 8 p. m., thus giving a whole day's round of pleasure.

Red Men.

On Thursday, September 5, next, the Ohio State Fair grounds will resound with battle cries of Indian warriors, as on that day the Red Men of Ohio will hold a monster State basket picnic. Great Schem, E. J. Granger, will soon issue a special invitation to each member of the order to attend and the largest assemblage of Red Men ever in Ohio is promised. Not only from Ohio will they come, but the uniformed rank at Altoona, Pa., will be there to compete with uniformed division No. 12 in a prize drill. These companies will also contest in the prize drill of all civic societies.

The members of the various Columbus tribes are planning a number of pleasing surprises to entertain the visiting tribesmen, and for this purpose a committee consisting of one member from each tribe has been appointed. They will establish headquarters on the fair grounds where the visitors will be welcomed. An information bureau will also be maintained there and they will aid in securing suitable accommodations for the warriors while in the capital city. An auxiliary committee from the Pocahontas Councils of Columbus will look after the welfare of visiting squaws.

The bold warriors of Columbus are moving in secret regarding the entertainment features, but it has been strongly hinted that the big chief will call together his brave band and entertain with a war dance. Equally as interesting features as the above are planning and the day will be devoted to strengthening the ties of fraternal brotherhood.

DECISION IN LINGAFELTER CASE COMING

Word has been received here that Judge J. B. Sater of the United States court, will soon hand down his decision in the bankruptcy case of former Banker J. F. Lingafelter, now in the penitentiary for the wrecking of the Newark Savings bank, and the Homestead Building association. A petition in error was filed in the United States court asking that court to reverse the decision of Referee Rogers. Mr. Lingafelter filed a petition in review to the allowance of the claims of the bank and the building association. All the matters that were decided by Referee Rogers are now before Judge Sater of the United States court for decision. It was also submitted to him the question as to whether the mortgage which Lingafelter gave to the Building Association was a preferred claim in the bankruptcy proceeding. This decision has been anxiously awaited as it will decide many important questions between the bank and the building association.

Only routine business was transacted at the meeting of Mt. Olive Encampment, No. 12, I. O. O. F., Thursday night.

A meeting of Johnstown lodge, No. 622, I. O. O. F., will be held this evening, on which occasion there will be work in the second and third degrees.

REAL INDIAN FOR THE COPPER CENT

It is announced that the new copper cent will bear the features of a real Indian, in low relief, it being considered that our only copper coin should commemorate a race whose features are well rendered in the tawny metal. The present "Indian" is not an Indian at all; the features are those of a sunny-haired, rosy-cheeked little New England girl, as fair as the dawn, wearing the historical war-bonnet in a playful make-up. She was the daughter of the designer of the coin, who rather worked a joke on the public. The new St. Gaudens cent will do fuller justice to Mr. Lo.

As to changes in the other coins, no definite announcements are made, but there is room for more distinctively American work than has yet appeared. The faces are usually modeled from somebody's plaster cast museum, and the rest of the treatment also is suggestive of an effort to copy the ancient classic in style. There is an opportunity for genuine art, which shall be genuinely American, in our stamped tokens of value. American money is distinctively enough and important enough to get some styles of its own.—Columbus Dispatch.

MEN WILLING TO ARBITRATE

Federation of Labor Lights May Serve in Telegraph Strike.

UNIONS OBEY LATEST ORDER

Operators in Smaller Towns Walk Out, Adding to the Crippled Condition of the Service—Company's Officials Claim Strike Is Broken—Situation in New York and Chicago.

New York, Aug. 17.—The general strike order issued by President Small of the Commercial Telegraphers' Union of America, had but little effect in this city, as the strike had been unofficially under way five days and nearly every member of the union had already deserted his or her wire. This was true of Chicago, Boston, Washington and other big centers, where local officials of the union formally declared the strike. A large number of union telegraphers in smaller cities and towns obeyed the order, and by walking out added to the crippled condition of the telegraph service.

In official statements issued from local strike headquarters it was declared that the business of the companies remains sadly crippled; that the mails and express companies are being freely used to transmit messages, charging full telegraphic rates, and that the optimistic statements from the company officials are not true. Superintendent Brooks of the Western Union. "We are running like a mill-race and consider the strike matter closed. I have heard nothing of tearing down of the Western Union signs in up-state towns. We are rapidly straightening out kinks in the service." From the Postal spokesman, Vice President E. J. Nally, comes this statement: "I believe that the backbone of the strike is already broken. President Small's action has been discounted by the call heretofore issued, which took out practically all of the union men who would go. Conditions are improving in all of our centers, especially in the south, where the men are coming back rapidly."

The report that President Small and the other national officers had signified their willingness to put their grievances in the hands of the American Federation of Labor arbitrators—John Mitchell of the mine workers, Daniel J. Keefe of the longshoremen and Samuel Gompers, president of the federation—was not received with great favor in the strikers' headquarters. "The local feeling seems to be that the Postal and Western Union companies can not operate effectively without the members of the union, and that all concessions should come from the company."

SMALL'S WORDS

Too Early to Talk of Arbitration, Labor Leaders Meet.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—No progress was made by the labor leaders who intervened to bring about a settlement of the telegraphers' strike through arbitration. President Small of the telegraphers' organization met Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor and Labor Commissioner Neill, but said that it was only in a social way and that it was too early to talk of arbitration. Despite the general strike order, both telegraph companies, it is said, were able to handle business with greater promptness than at any time since the strike. Any just proposition of arbitration, it is said, will be accepted by the striking telegraphers. President Small so stated to the press. "The commercial telegraphers are striking for their just rights," declared President Small. "We are not seeking revenge or to inconvenience the public. Whenever we can gain our end by arbitration we will be glad to accept it. We will be willing at any time to listen to proposals from fair and honest men, but we will never be willing to accept President Cleveland's unbecomingly labeled 'arbitration.' We have tasted of that in the past. The strikers are not blind to the actual conditions. They realize the hardships that are before them, but they have the courage, and the memories of the indignities and injustices heaped upon them in the past will steel them to make a good fight."

Telegraphers Score a Point.

Columbus, O., Aug. 17.—Telegraphers won their first victory here when all the Columbus stock-broking establishments who had not already done so signed up the wage scale for which the "key-punchers" all over the country have been fighting. The increase granted raises the salaries of the telegraphers from $10 to $15 a month, and makes the average wage $25 a week.

No Effect.

Los Angeles, Aug. 17.—The order of President Small had no appreciable effect in Los Angeles, the big brokerage firms working leased wires to Chicago and New York as usual. One of these wires has about 30 operators between this city and New York, but there was no difficulty anywhere. These wires have about 20 operators between to affiliation with the union.

So far as learned not an additional man went out.

Ade's New Play. South Bend, Ind., Aug. 17.—George Ade's new play, "Artie," was given its initial performance here. After two more performances the play will be taken to Chicago.

PRICES ADVANCE FOR HARD COAL

Philadelphia, Aug. 17.—Following the action of the Philadelphia coal exchange, which raised the retail prices of anthracite, officers of the railroad coal companies of Pennsylvania are said to have decided on the increase at the mines. It will affect all steam coal. Half the product of the mines is steam coal. This amounts to 25,000,000 tons a year. Coincident with the increase in the price of coal at the mines a large advance has been made by coal-carrying roads in their freight rates. The railroads and mine interests are identical. In spite of all these increases it is said that the New England state are so short of anthracite coal that they will gladly pay any price the trust demands.

U. P. RAILROAD TO BE INVESTIGATED

It is Held that Rates on Coal Shipped Were Excessive and Unjust.

Washington, Aug. 17.—An action was instituted before the interstate commerce commission by the Nebraska state railway commission against the Union Pacific Railroad company, alleging that the rates of the defendant on coal shipped from Rock Springs, Wyo., to Nebraska points, were excessive and unjust. The commission is asked to fix a maximum rate on each shipment that will be fair to the people of Nebraska.

Wreck at Niagara Gorge. Niagara Falls, Aug. 17.—A Grand Trunk freight train was wrecked on the lower steel arch bridge over the Niagara gorge. The bridge was damaged and four cars loaded with meat dropped into the whirlpool rapids. Traffic over the bridge is blocked.

CHARLES E. APPLEBY.

CHARLES E. APPLEBY

New York, Aug. 17.—When old John Bough, a veteran confidence man, was arrested on the charge that he had undertaken to appropriate for straw bond purposes a parcel of realty belonging to Charles Edgar Appleby, he was not aware that he was uncovering to the public a man who accumulated in New York a fortune of $25,000,000, without letting New York into the secret. Yet such is the case.

For sixty years Mr. Appleby, who will be eighty-three years old next month, has been piling thousands on thousands and millions on millions by what he terms "old foggy" methods, and while doing so scarcely has

CRIMINAL PROCEEDINGS

Recommended In the Pennsylvania Capitol Scandal.

EIGHTEEN PERSONS NAMED

Report of the Investigating Committee Made to Governor Stewart—Names of Former Governors Pennypacker and Stone Not in the List—Some Sensational Allegations.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 27.—The capitol investigating commission has made its report to Governor Stewart, recommending criminal and civil proceedings against all persons concerned in the fraudulent construction and furnishing of the $13,000,000 capitol building. Eighteen persons are named as being involved in the transactions, and the attorney general is urged to act at once. Governor Pennypacker, who was an ex-officio member of board of public grounds, and of former Governor Stone and his associates who made up the commission which constructed the capitol, are not in the list. The commission says that it learned from testimony that goods costing $1,574,399 were sold to the state by Sanderson and the Pennsylvania Construction company for $6,434,748.

The persons against whom either criminal or civil suits are recommended are John H. Sanderson, Philadelphia; Joseph M. Huston, architect, and Stanford Lewis, his assistant; J. H. Shumaker, Johnstown, former superintendent of the board of public grounds and buildings; W. R. Snyder and E. B. Hardenberg, former auditors general; W. L. Mathes and Frank G. Harris, former state treasurer; Congressman P. Burd Cassel, president of the Pennsylvania Construction company, which supplied the metallic casings and furniture; George F. Payne, who built the capitol, and his partner, Charles G. Welter; Charles P. Kinsman, Willis Boylea, John Euderer and George K. Storm, who organized the Pennsylvania Bronze company, which supplied the lighting fixtures; Frank Irvine, employee of the auditor general's office; George C. Town, bookkeeper under Shumaker, and the International Manufacturing and Supply company, which bid against Sanderson for capitol furnishings.

Attorney General Todd is in Maine, but will return in time to start criminal proceedings in September. His office has already begun work on the papers. The commission will be represented by the attorney general and his deputies and State Senator Fox. Davis T. Watson of Pittsburgh will be associated with the attorney general as advisory counsel.

PRESIDENT SPEAKS IN MASSACHUSETTS

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 17.—President Roosevelt will sail from here Monday morning on the Mayflower for Provincetown, Mass., where he is to take a leading part in the celebration of the landing of the Pilgrims. Tuesday the Mayflower, conveyed by two torpedo boats, will receive proper naval honors from the battleship squadron under Rear Admiral Davis and Rear Admiral Thomas. President Roosevelt will land at 10:40 a. m. for the shore ceremonies, which will be concluded in time for him to re-embark at 4 p. m. He expects to reach Oyster Bay the following afternoon.

GOLFERS SCARED BY GREAT MANIAC

Wheaton, Ill., Aug. 17.—A panic of fear has swept over Wheaton at the presence in the woods near here of a giant maniac who has successfully eluded all attempts at capture. A posse is being organized to take him to cover. He has haunted the neighborhood about the Chicago Golf club, and members have frequently deserted the links when this wild man has put in an appearance in a near-by cornfield. Several days ago he ran up behind Hazel Butterfield, 17, on a country road, grabbed the girl and ran toward a fence. The girl's screams brought her father, and on his appearance the maniac dropped her and disappeared.

GROWING CROPS Show Further Good Progress and Fall Trade Expands.

New York, Aug. 17.—Bradstreet's trade review says: Growing crops show further progress toward harvest, and fall trade tends to expand at leading western and eastern jobbing centers. Cross currents are visible in different industries. Thus while finished cotton fabrics are in demand and some makes, notably bleached goods, have been further advanced, there are reports of smaller demand and lower prices for cotton yarns. In the leather trade there is more life than of late. Iron and steel the lack of new buying is still notable and prices tend to ease. The influence of the slump in the stock market was clearly shown in the decline of cotton prices, offsetting as it did reports of continued hot weather in Texas, with no rain. There is something like a general advance in time loans at leading cities. Business failures for the week ending Aug. 15 number 145, against 157 last week and 143 in the like week of 1906.

Deceased Wife's Sister Bill. London, Aug. 17.—An English widower may now marry the sister of his deceased wife if both are living. The house of commons, in an all-night session, has lifted the ban which from time immemorial has forbidden such marriages.

IN HER "NIGHTIE" SHE RODE WHEEL

PRETTY IOWA GIRL STARTLED A POLICEMAN AT MIDNIGHT ON STREET.

Clad Only in Her Long Night Robe With Hair Flying—Was a Somnambulist.

St. Dodge, Iowa, Aug. 17.—The ghost-like apparition of a girl astride a bicycle, flitting about the streets after midnight will not stirle residents in the East End any longer. For weeks pedestrians abroad late at night have been scared.

Clad only in a flowing white garment with hair streaming behind her and the gas lamps revealing bare feet and ankles, the ghost rider had excited a good deal of interest as well as flight. Several attempts made to follow the rider have failed because the bicycle always disappeared.

Last night a policeman, attracted by a crash and a scream, ran around a corner and solved the mystery. He found a young and pretty girl clad in a tan nightgown which had suffered severely when the wheel she was riding struck a curb. The girl was dazed, but told the policeman where she lived. He escorted her home and startled her father, a well-known merchant, who thought his daughter was safe in bed.

The girl said she had no recollection of her night rides. She had been flitting about the streets on her wheel and in her nightdress asleep. History does not record it, but it is barely possible that Abel asked Cain if it was not enough for him.

FARM HAND SUITOR MOTORS AWAY WITH BEIRESS LOVE

AGNES McMULLEN.

New York, Aug. 17.—If Mrs. Elizabeth Roxbury wants to keep love's path strewn with primroses for a while at least, she will tender her forgiveness to her daughter, Agnes, who left her parent's side and allowed herself to be "kidnaped" in a green automobile so that she could marry the man of her choice. The young woman and her husband, Timothy Dervin, are somewhere on a honeymoon according to friends, and it is the general impression that Mrs. Roxbury after a few days' reflection will open her arms in welcome and forget that the wedding was held against her will.

Miss McMullen and her sister Josephine are the sole heiresses to a large estate left them by their grandmother, and Dervin is said to be the son of a wealthy man, but who, in

WANTS NEWS FROM PERSIAN BORDER

Washington, Aug. 17.—Mr. Finkelstein, the Persian charge here, called at the state department to make inquiries concerning rumors that Turkish troops were marching upon Urumiah, within the district in dispute between Turkey and Persia. Acting Secretary Adee had no information upon this point, but called attention to the fact that Ambassador Leischmann's last report, which was identical with that received at the department from British sources, was to the effect that the Turkish government had given assurances that none of its troops would be sent to Urumiah, nor indeed into the district in which it lies, while the boundary question is unsettled.

Don Cecilio began his diplomatic career as the representative of his country to the republic of Mexico. He was also a delegate to the Second Pan-American conference, which was held in Mexico City. He is regarded as one of the most capable of the foreign diplomats at Washington and speaks English fluently.

CONFISCATED THREE ROADS

Charge Preferred Against Chicago and Alton Company.

NEW YORK MAN COMPLAINANT

Claims the Defendant Company Is Converting the Earnings and Surplus of the Smaller Lines to Enlarge the Earnings of the Alton, Substance of Unique Complaint.

Washington, Aug. 17.—The Chicago & Alton Railroad company is charged with having practically confiscated three other railroads, which now form part of the Chicago & Alton system, in a unique complaint filed with the interstate commerce commission.

The complainant in the case is John B. Manning of New York city, a minority stockholder in the Louisiana & Missouri River railroad, and the defendants are the Chicago & Alton and the Louisiana & Missouri River roads. Manning alleges that he holds 123 shares of the common and 51 shares of the preferred stock of the Louisiana & Missouri River road, and that with the exception of 313 shares of the common and 167 shares of the preferred stock, the Chicago & Alton owns the entire capital stock of the road, which amounts to $1,010,000 of preferred and $2,312,700 of common stock. He asserts that after the Chicago & Alton had acquired this stock, it "entered into a pretended lease with itself," by which it "pretended to lease to itself the 101 miles of railroad and equipment owned by the Louisiana & Missouri River Railroad company, at a price and upon terms which practically confiscated and destroyed the property rights and values of your petitioner."

It is alleged that the only compensation paid for the property by the Chicago & Alton is $23,000 a year interest; that the Chicago & Alton is converting the earnings and surplus of the smaller road "to exaggerate and show up the earnings of the Chicago & Alton Railroad company," and that the complainant has been denied access to the books of the roads in order that he might protect his interests. He therefore asks the commission to obtain an accounting of the Louisiana & Missouri River road since 1891 and to afford him such relief as may be just and equitable.

Not in Financial Stress. Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 17.—President W. H. Whiteside of the Allis-Chalmers company issued a statement denying absolutely that his company is in financial difficulties. The statement is as follows: "There is no foundation whatever for the rumor that a receivership has been asked for this company. The company was never in a more prosperous condition. We have orders on our books at the present time aggregating $15,400,000, which assure us a full year's work ahead of us for all manufacturing departments."

Nineteen Perished. Buenos Ayres, Aug. 17.—Details received here of a wreck in Flinders bay of the American bark Prussia, from Norfolk March 20 for Port Townsend, say that the captain committed suicide when the vessel ran ashore, and that 14 passengers, in addition to four sailors, lost their lives.

Commissioner Discouraged. Chicago, Aug. 17.—United States Labor Commissioner Neill left for Washington. Just before taking his train he said that the telegraphers' strike could not be settled in Chicago and that the only place where an adjustment could be reached was in New York.

MOROCCO'S SULTAN SUES FOR PEACE

Tangier, Aug. 17.—Advices received here from Fez say that the grand council called by the sultan to consider the situation at Casablanca has agreed that he shall use all his influence in the direction of peace. The sultan has begged the Europeans not to leave Fez, as he would not be responsible for their safety if they depart from the capital.

How Tom Thumb Found a Wife

Those who have followed the history of this brave little man it may be interesting to know that after his many hairbreadth escapes he was knighted by the great King Arthur and there was no bolder or better man at the round table. His good parents were not forgotten, and, though his life was passed at court, they lived near by. After a day's adventure Tom Thumb would call upon them, and, using his father's hand as a platform, he would walk up and down telling of the prowess of the knights, the point of his tiny sword tickling the great palm. "And you, my son," said the fond mother, "I know full well are brave, but you say nothing of your own great deeds."

"Oh," said the little knight, "I sometimes ride forth with one of the valiant gentlemen, seated in the ear of his steed, my favorite watchtower, and if I see the combat going against our side I am on the ground at once attacking the heel or toe of the enemy with my good sword. Yesterday I routed, single handed, an army of another long day's journey and another long night's vigil before you reach her again. Here we are!"

At this moment Tom Thumb felt his head bump against the lowest branch of the rosebush, so he leaped out upon it and stood waving his hat at the cattail, which swayed and waved back at him in the night breeze.

Then he began the ascent, going hand over hand from branch to branch. This he found was very hard to do, for the bush was full of thorns, and time after time he was forced to stop and hew them down with his sword. Farther on he encountered a caterpillar, a horned and dreadful beast, which he slew in bloody combat upon a leaf. When nearing the top he was attacked by a fierce bluebottle fly, but his sword ran through the enemy, whose dying buzz broke the stillness of the night.

Once he hid in the heart of a rose while a great green worm came wriggling toward him, but Tom Thumb took two of the thorns he had cut off and pinned his enemy to a leaf. His last battle was with a red ant who tried to bite his leg, but once again the good sword was too quick,

GETTING READY FOR SCHOOL.

Mothers May Help the Child and Lighten the Teacher's Burden.

Now that it is almost time for the children to go back to school, it is worth while making some effort to see that they are comfortably equipped for the business. Clothing may be planned during the summer vacation. Of changes of garments there should be enough to keep the little ones neatly and comfortably clad. Now that little girls are again wearing aprons, a store of these is useful, and if they are made at home be sure that they have ample pockets. Pockets are useful for tucking pencils or erasers in moments of surprise or excitement. Even the most thoughtless little girl will be all afternoon to remember that she stowed them away in her pocket. Such small matters mean little to the home folks, but they bring good or bad "marks" to the little scholar.

About Books.

If any schoolbooks are taken from home they should be covered neatly. Thin table oilcloth or that sold for covering shelves is the best for the purpose, as it can be washed off when soiled. Heavy paper or linen may be substituted. A neat bag for carrying books, pencils, etc., to and from school is appreciated by the little ones. It may be made at home of linen or bur-lap in gray, dark green, red or seal brown, either embroidered or braided. An initial letter worked upon the outside will give the children that comfortable sense of personal possession which is valuable in making them feel responsible for the good condition of whatever they own.

Slates and Rulers.

If the child has to have a ruler, buy one of the noiseless kind, even if it costs a little more. The teacher will be grateful, and the child will be spared many a reprimand, for childish fingers are clumsy, and we all know how perverse inanimate things can be at times. Fortunately the exasperating slate is never seen except in rural schoolrooms, but if Johnny or Jenny must have one get the light "book" slate or else one of those with frames faceted in felt or rubber. A neat sponge, a cloth and a bottle with a screw top for holding soap and water should go with the slate.

Conveniences For the Desk.

If you have some bright bits of cretonne or chintz you can make a neat little wastebasket to stand upon the child's desk or underneath it. The

THE HAPPY LITTLE SCHOLAR.

A basket must be small and put together with ribbons or tapes so that it can be folded up and tucked into the desk when not in use. A noiseless box of this sort for pencils, etc., to stand on top of the desk may also be made. A desk pad made from a stiff square or oblong of cardboard and fitted at the corners with tips of chintz or burlap is a useful accessory to the school outfit. If a sheet of blotting paper is slipped underneath the tips it will make a neat desk cover, protect that much abused piece of furniture from injury and deaden the sound from dropped pencils or books which is so irritating in the busy schoolroom.

For the Boarding School Outfit.

For the boy and girl who are being sent away from home the list of possible comforts that may be carried in a trunk is very great. For older girls a chafing dish or alcohol lamp is a boon, as there are times when a cup of hot tea or chocolate will work wonders. In most boarding schools such things cannot be obtained between meals, and the chance to supplement the hurried breakfast or distasteful dinner with a bite in one's room sometimes means the difference between good work in the classroom and no work at all. For the girl who has electric light in her room one of the new smoothing irons which can be operated by attaching it to the light is useful in smoothing out wrinkled gowns or ribbons. A hot water bag is a good thing to warm up a cold bed or use in case of illness. A store of pretty draperies for windows, doors or tables is very desirable in beautifying the college room, which is generally comparatively bare. Daintily framed portraits of home folks and a folding rocker will be appreciated in the new surroundings. AURELIA DWIGHT.

GOWN OF COTTON VOILE, TRIMMED WITH BLACK TAFFETA.

The model shown in the sketch was decidedly smart in effect, and could be copied at small expense. The original gown was of pink and white-striped cotton voile, the surplice bodice being worn over a deep yoke and undersleeves of white wash net and lace. The upper part of the yoke was formed of a heavy medallion of Valenciennes in combination with cluny. In most boarding schools such things cannot be obtained between meals, and the chance to supplement the hurried breakfast or distasteful dinner with a bite in one's room sometimes means the difference between good work in the classroom and no work at all. THE GRAND PROMOTER

Stranger Looking For Wealth Gives the Major a Surprise.

VICTIM WAS WILLING ENOUGH.

But as His Capital Consisted of Just 25 Cents He Was Not the Kind of a Man the Promoter Cared to Do Business With.

[Copyright, 1907, by E. C. Parcells.]
The grand promoter had just reached his office and thrown up his solitary window to let the spring sunshine and the songs of robins and bluebirds float into the room at so much a float when the door, which he had carelessly left unlocked, opened to admit a man who was a stranger to him. The man had a smile on his face, and that proved that he wasn't a creditor. His attitude was not at all aggressive, and

FISHED A QUARTER OF A DOLLAR. That showed he was not a bill collector. His look was not interrogative, and therefore he was not going to inquire for the corn doctor or dentist upstairs. The grand promoter was puzzled, and he held his breath while the caller looked around and made ready to ask: "Excuse me, but is this the office of Major Crofoot?"

"It is."
"Major Crofoot, the grand promoter?"
"The same."

"The Major Crofoot who has made a hundred different men rich by letting them in on the ground floor of his enterprises?"
"I am the man. What can I do for you today?"

"Look here, major," continued the caller as he helped himself to a seat on one of the broken backed chairs, "I've got a little money to invest. I was advised to come to you. I was told that you could double and quadruple it for me in six months."

Breathed With Difficulty. The major breathed with difficulty. He had counted up his cash capital that morning and had found it amounted to but 27 cents. His shoes needed repairing, his clothes needed cleaning and the landlord would be after him for the rent that week. Here was a fly that had walked into his net, and he looked like an easy fish to work. It was fifteen seconds before he could reply:

"You have come to the right place, sir, and you could not have arrived at a more opportune moment. I have organized and am just incorporating the greatest, grandest enterprise of the forty that I have had to do with in the last five years. I can make a rich man of you in a year."

"By crickey, but you are the feller I'm looking for!" exclaimed the other. "My name's White—Jim White. I've saved a little money, and I want to get rich. I'm no hog, but I want a span of horses, a diamond pin and enough to buy three tons of coal at once. Go ahead and tell me what you've got. I've got the rhino right here in my pocket to hand over."

"My dear sir," purred the major as his smile took on the look of a bunch of ripe yellow bananas, "my latest and greatest and grandest enterprise is 'The Great American Hole in the Ground.' The capital is $5,000,000, but we have only to pay in $1,000 for advertising purposes. The shares are non-assessable and will be sold for whatever we can get. Everything that comes in over the first thousand is so much velvet. I am the president of the corporation, and I want a secretary. His duties will consist in helping me open the mail and taking out and counting the money sent in by suckers."

"Then it's a snide thing?" queried Mr. White.
"Not at all, sir. On the contrary, it's a perfectly legitimate enterprise. I can take up a daily paper and show you thirty advertisements of the same thing. The only difference is that while they advertise their schemes as copper and silver mines, we are honest enough to advertise ours as a hole in the ground. It's just as honest as the railroad deals taking place every day. Our only care must be to make the hole in the ground big enough to hold all the money sent in by the suckers."

adamonds, rubies or what not into the hole and invests. I start out by offering $1 shares for 5 cents. Then they jump to 10—20—30—40, and so on up. Just before each jump the suckers tumble over each other to get in at the old price."

"But you've got to come to an end somewhere," said Mr. White.
"Of course. After we have jumped the shares to 75 and the suckers are beginning to inquire about dividends we bank the last of their cash and start out to buy yachts and manor houses. The hole in the ground is left for them to go out west and look at. If some one has stolen the hole and carried it off, we bribe a lawyer to scare them off on the grounds that they were trying to swindle us. Didn't you read in the papers in March about the railroad king that mortgaged a railroad line not yet surveyed to buy the stock of a running road and water it one-half? Our dodge is more honest than that."

"By thunder, but a feller once sold me a gold brick, and now I'd like to get even with some one else!" exclaimed Mr. White as he rose up and walked around.
"Then here's your opportunity. Nothing like it under the sun. The Great American Hole in the Ground will do the business."

"Where is the hole?"
"We don't say."
"What is in the hole?"
"We don't say."
"How deep is the hole?"
"We don't say."
"How wide is it?"
"We don't say."

All Kinds of Wealth. "We simply stick to the Great American Hole in the Ground, and the dear public does the rest. Five days after we begin advertising it will take a carpetbag to hold our money letters. In ten days we will need a barrel. In a month the letters will be brought from the postoffice by a moving van. Not a word from the postal authorities against the scheme. Not a philanthropist anywhere looking out for the suckers. Ministers, widows, schoolteachers, orphans, pensioners and blind men all looking for that hole in the ground, and 100 per cent profits. Do you see?"

"Gaul, damn me if I don't!" replied Mr. White.
"Willing to go in with me?"
"Ten times over. How much do I get out of it?"

"A salary of $25,000 a year to start with. If you are active and prompt about opening the letters and taking out the suckers' money, you shall have a raise within three months. All we want to start with is the $1,000 for advertising. And—"

"And here is this much toward it." Mr. White went down into his pocket and fished up a quarter of a dollar and held it out on his palm. It was there a full minute before the major asked:

"What for?"
"So much toward the thousand. I'll be on hand Monday morning to begin opening the suckers' letters."

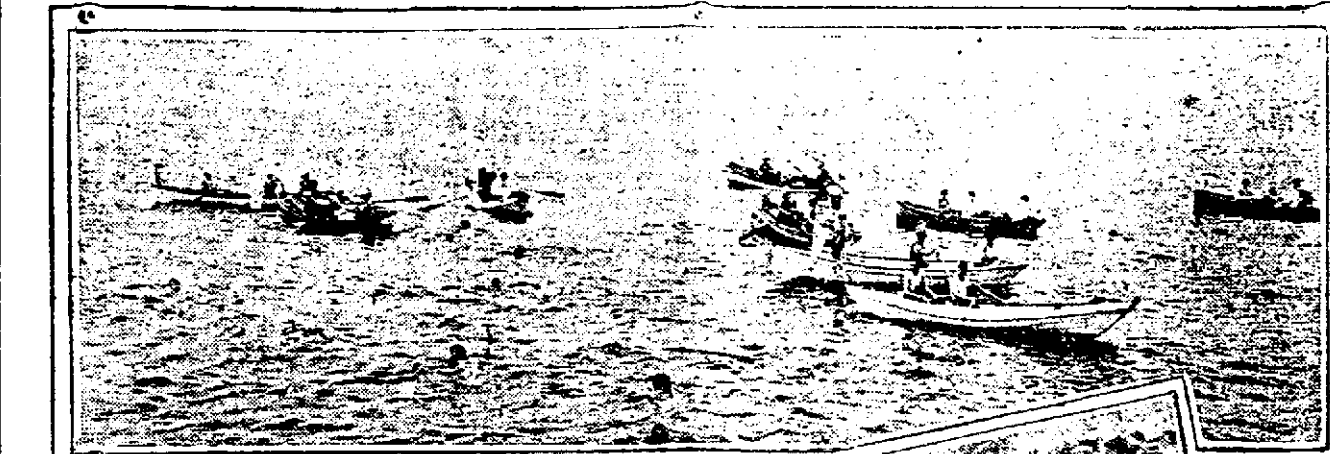

The grand promoter had talked a lung out, and the other lung wanted a holiday. Therefore he couldn't talk. He simply sighed, took Mr. White by the shoulders and turned him around and pushed him out, and then, locking the door, he sat down with such a general weakness stealing over him that he hadn't ambition enough to jab at a cockroach with a stub pen.

GETTING READY TO SELL. Valley City, N. D., and Souderton, Pa., Tired of Their Electric Lighting Plants.

Valley City, N. D., has decided by a vote of nearly three to one to sell its electric light plant, every ward in the city voting in favor of the sale. In explaining the cause of this action, a local banker writes that, like most such enterprises, the Valley City plant "has become a burden to the city" and "has been furnishing poor lights for the past two years. For this reason and because of increasing prices many have deserted the service."

The dissatisfaction with the service has been growing a long time. Two attempts were made to dispose of it three years ago. The first bids were rejected as being too low. The next bid, accepted by the council, was not in accordance with the specifications, and another bidder secured an injunction restraining the sale. Many business houses have installed private gasoline lighting systems of their own.

The total enrollment of the school was 887, with a faculty of 60 instructors. The personality of the principal, J. H. Dickason, accounts for much of the growth of the school. Frank Hildebrand, superintendent of the Breau Bridge, La., Model school, enrolled 339 in his classes alone. The lecture course was presented by Byron W. King, Booker T. Washington and seven other speakers.

Mr. Lamb sent the "tallyho" wagon to meet Miss Daisy's guests at Granville and a jolly crowd they proved to be and a most delightful time was experienced during the four mile drive from Granville to Miss Daisy's home. The house and lawn were beautifully decorated with the club colors which were both beautiful and effective. The game of the afternoon was pedro for which Mrs. Shepard won the trophy, while the consolation prize was awarded Mrs. Wilhelm. The most enjoyable feature of the afternoon was a dainty collation, which was served on the spacious lawn to the members and following guests: Mrs. Moore of Pueblo, San Francisco; Mrs. Suter, Mrs. Palmer, the Misses Alice and Rachel Burch of Newark; Miss Howe of Columbus and Miss Faro of New Philadelphia.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

CLASSES FROM BROOKLYN OF CONEY ISLAND SWIMMING MATCHES.

New York, Aug. 17.—Six out of fifteen starters finished the swimming match from Brooklyn Bridge to the foot of West Thirtieth street, Coney Island, on August 11, and because they finished within the time limit all six were considered as winners of the first prize.

The match, which was for members of the United States Volunteer life guards, proved that they are all strong swimmers. None of the six who finished was exhausted and all declared that they could have swum much further.

ALL WRONG. The Mistake is Made by Many Newark Citizens.
Don't mistake the cause of backache.

To be cured you must know the cause.
It is wrong to imagine relief is cure.

Backache is kidney aches. You must cure the kidneys. A Newark resident tells you how this can be done.

Wesley Rowland, express driver, living on Washington St., near Mill St., East Newark, O., says: "Many a time my back pained me so and was so weak that I could not load my wagon. If I stopped to pick up anything it was all I could do to straighten up. My back pained me so at night that I could not sleep. I would wake up again with terrible pain through the back and shoulders as if I were in a cramp. I tried liniments and various remedies but found nothing that helped me until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Crayton's drug store. Three boxes were all that were required to cure me and the cure has been permanent. That was two years ago and I have had no trouble of the kind since."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's and take no other.

Recently the church authorities had an opportunity to replace the old building with a new one, and the viscountess, who had gone on a visit to South Africa, was notified at Johannesburg shortly after her arrival that the stone was to be laid. Women Who Do Realizing a Childhood Dream—Busy Old Age—Keeping a Promise Under Difficulty—Women and the Trade Union League.

Early in October a quiet little woman will sail from San Francisco with all her modest luggage directed "Laichoufou, China." Laichoufou is an insignificant town in north China, to reach which one must travel from the coast three days in a donkey cart. Nevertheless she faces this perilous journey happily for to her it means the realization of a childhood dream. She is going to see and help the people of China. The young woman is Miss Florence Jones of Springfield, Mo., a graduate of a St. Louis and New York training school for nurses. Recently two returned missionaries from China were among the patients at the sanitarium where she was employed, and so eloquent were the stories they told of the unhappy condition of women in China and the lack of medical aid that a number of wealthy persons subscribed the money to establish a hospital at Laichoufou, where the miss was asked to be sent out to work in the hospital and was appointed its head, although she is only thirty years of age. She will, however, have only a staff of one other nurse to assist her.

Three Busy Old Ladies.

Three of the busiest, brainiest and cheeriest women in America are Mrs. Amelia Barr, Mrs. Harriet Mann Miller and Mrs. Mary Virginia Terhune. They are perhaps the most popular women writers in America and by a strange coincidence are all seventy-six years of age. Mrs. Barr celebrated her birthday on March 29 at her home, Cherry Croft, Cornwall-on-the-Hudson, N. Y. Mrs. Miller, better known by her pen name of Olive Thorne Miller, observed hers on June 25 at her home in Brooklyn, while Mrs. Terhune, known the world over as Marion Harland, has hers to look forward to on Dec. 21, when it will probably be made a special fete occasion at her home, Sunnyside, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. These three delightful women have never dipped their pens in the ink of the problem novel. Everything they have written has been bright, clean and wholesome, yet their popularity, past and present, casts in the shade anything achieved by the morbid women writers of the new school.

BUFFALO BILL'S WILD WEST SHOW

BOOKED FOR NEWARK THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, AFTER YEARS ABROAD.

Congress of Rough Riders and Battle of Summit Springs Are Features of Show.

Our pleasure loving citizens will be interested in the announcement that Buffalo Bill's Wild West and Congress of Rough Riders of the World will visit this city on September 5, the internationally famous exhibition comes direct from Madison Square Garden, New York City where it began its tour this spring after having been abroad for four consecutive years. The program which the Wild West presents upon the road is identical with that given at Madison Square Garden, and which, the New York Press declared, was the best entertainment "Buffalo Bill" has ever presented during the 2 years the Wild West has been before the public.

Four years abroad brings the Wild West home as practically a new exhibition. It has not made an American tour in practically five years, and its many stirring features and scenic novelties will be hailed with delight by those who have witnessed the exhibition in seasons past. To the new and younger element the historic features will be especially interesting. The story of the development of the Great West is told by Buffalo Bill and his associates in a series of vivid pictures, and in some instances the participants are drawn from the original scenes.

The Congress of Rough Riders will, as usual, be made up of horsemen from every clime, our own native cowboys vieing with foreign equestrians in riding feats and displays of equestrian daring. In addition to these exhibitions of horsemanship the Wild West program will include two special features prepared expressly for the Buffalo Bill entertainment as typical of its aim to present historic scenes incident to the conquest of the far West. These features will include "The Battle of Summit Springs," a pantomimic melodrama, and "The Great Train Hold-Up," and "The Bandit Hunters of the Union Pacific."

"The Battle of Summit Springs" will depict one of the most thrilling episodes in Indian warfare. It has been fittingly designated as a triumph among open air productions. Historically accurate it shows one of the many scenes in border conflicts in which Col. W. F. Cody (Buffalo Bill) justly earned his fame as an Indian fighter, scout and intrepid plainsman. In this production actual scenes in Indian life are depicted, their domestic customs are shown and a barbaric war dance forms an interesting part of the display. Troops of cavalry, a host of Indians, the clash of conflict, and every event incident to these battles with the red men are realistically blended in a picture of impelling force and interest.

OIL AND GAS NOTES

(Utica Herald.) Four miles of six inch line will be hauled out from Utica by the Central Ohio company.

The Ohio Fuel has drilled in on Hiram Wolfe in Harrison township, Knox county, getting 1 1/2 millions.

The Charles Guckert well of the Ohio Fuel Supply, in Granville township, came in last week with a volume of 1 1/2 millions.

The Columbus company has located No. 2 on the E. J. Case farm, to offset the Ohio Fuel on the Guckert lease adjoining.

The rig has been hauled in for a Logan well on the J. L. Kinsey 81 acres in the southeastern part of Milford township.

Mr. Greer, for the Mohican company, recently made two locations on the Matthew Ewart lease in the western part of Pleasant township.

Everett has made a location on the A. P. Nichol farm, near the big Philbrick well. This is Everett's first location in Granville township.

The Ohio Fuel Supply drilled in a big well, gauging ten millions, on the lease of Mrs. A. D. Bunn in Clinton township, near Mt. Vernon last week.

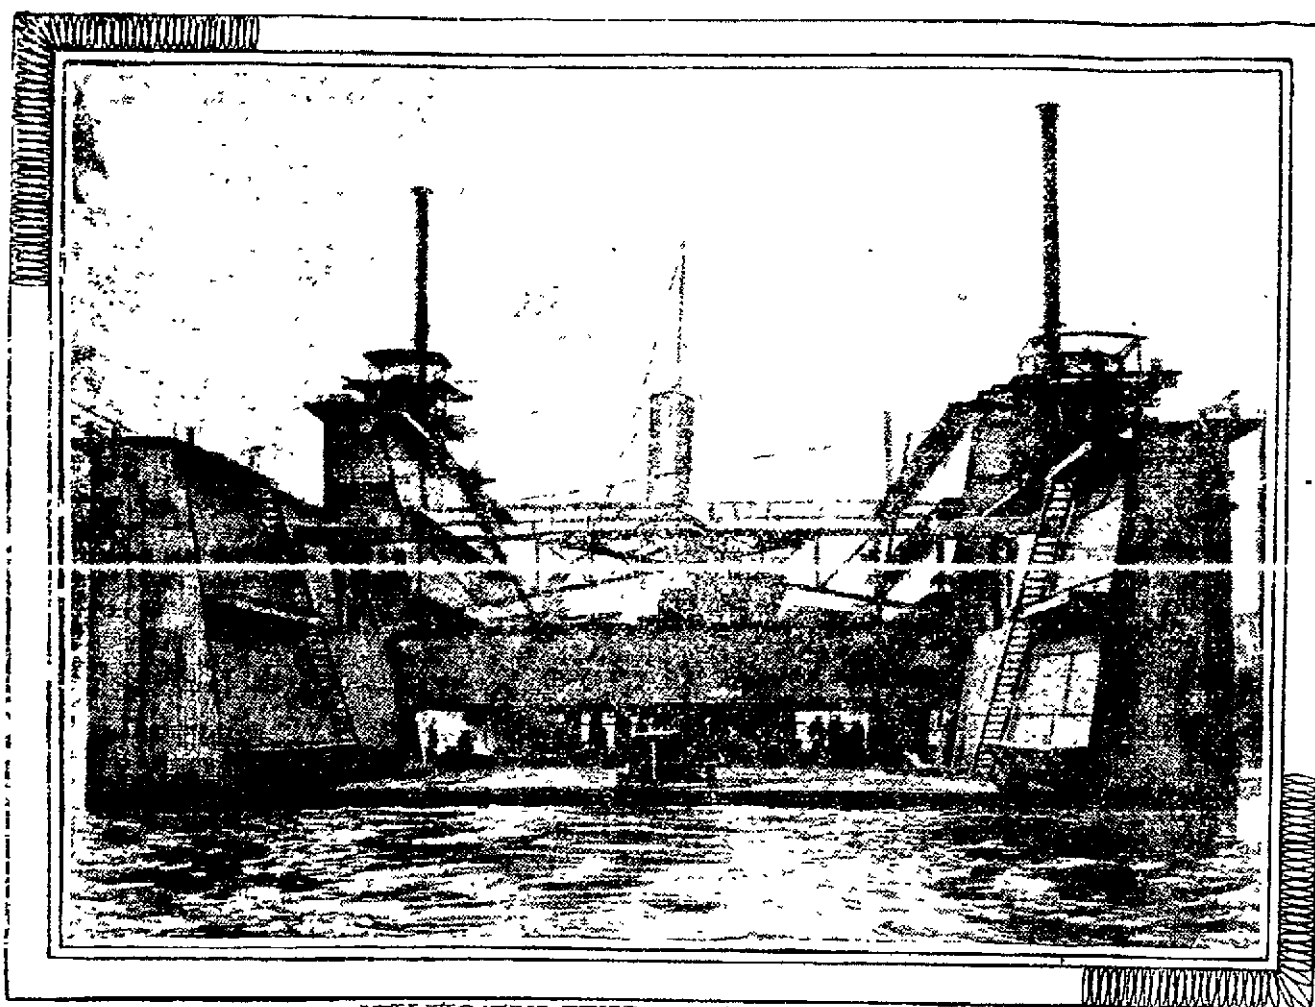

The Ohio Fuel has advanced the price of gas to manufacturers in Columbus to 15 cents. There is a rumor that the domestic rate will be put up to 30 cents next winter.

Heisey & Co. furnished two of the wells on the Richard Sheldon lease in Granville township. No. 1 showed 700,000 cubic feet, and No. 2 showed two millions. The rig is up for No. 3.

No. 3 of the Ohio Fuel Supply on the A. J. Cada lease in McKean township has been drilled in with a volume of two millions. It is between the two five millions wells on the John Smith parcels.

Lytle, for the Ohio Fuel, has made the following new locations: L. A. Edwards farm 2 1/2 miles southwest of Granville; Will Stark's ten acres west of Granville; Griffin's Eggleston farm 2 miles west of Granville; David Lewis farm 2 miles southwest of

NEW FLOATING DRY DOCK AT TRINIDAD.

NEW FLOATING DRY DOCK FOR TRINIDAD

Emulating the feat of the dry dock Dewey, which had an eventful but successful trip to Manila, there has just arrived at Port of Spain, Trinidad, a huge dry dock which was constructed at WallSEND-on-Tyne for the Trinidad Dock and Engineering company. The new dock reached its destination in tow of two tugs. It will find a resting place at Chaguaramas Bay, near Port of Spain, the capital of the island.

Granville: George O'Daniel's Grove Case farm near Granville.

No. 1 on the Isaac Miller farm in Clay township, Ohio Fuel Supply company came in last week as a fine one. It was estimated at near three millions at the start, but the gauge is said to have showed only one and one-half millions at the time of the tubing. No. 2 on the same farm encountered trouble and the rig has been moved.

Since the territory was proven good further east and southeast by the Lee Bell and Wm. Smoots wells, the greatest interest is the test still further east, on the Meyers lease in Fallsburg township. The drill was down about 2000 feet over there on Tuesday. The gas sand will be found deep, if it exists at all—probably 2800 feet—so that it will not get in for a considerable time even if big water is not encountered.

A. J. Wilson's third well was drilled in on Monday of this week. It gauged good one and a quarter millions, free of water.

The Central Ohio company is looking further northeastward than usual. It has located a well on the northern part of the George Sellers 101 acre lease near the center of Morgan township. The rig is up.

The Bremen Oil and Gas Co. drilled in another oil well week before last, on the Purvis farm six miles south of the Winegardner oil wells of Rushville. It was reported a dry hole, but after being shot it made oil at the rate of 75 to 100 barrels per day.

Rising From the Grave.

A prominent manufacturer, Wm. A. Fertwell, of Ludama, N. C., relates a most remarkable experience. He says: "After taking less than three bottles of Electric Bitters, I feel like one rising from the grave. My trouble is Bright's disease, in the Diabetes stage. I fully believe Electric Bitters will cure me permanently for it has already stopped the liver and bladder complications which have troubled me for years." Guaranteed at F. D. Hall's drug store. Price 50c.

JOHNSTOWN NEWS

Johnstown, Aug. 17—Bryant, the three year old son of Mrs. Williams, was run over Tuesday afternoon, while playing in the street by a team and wagon driven by Cus Peasley, an employe at the Frost livery stable. Mr. Peasley did not see the little fellow as his attention was drawn in a different direction, and so absorbed was the mind of the child in its play that it did not notice the approaching team. Dr. Mattingly was called at once and attended the injuries. No bones were broken and with the exception of some very bad bruises it is thought no further injury was done. It was, however, a miraculous escape as he was knocked about quite severely while the team and wagon passed over him.

At the fourth quarterly conference held at the Methodist church presided over by Dr. Norcross, the presiding elder of this district, motions were placed unanimously inviting Dr. Lathrop to return as pastor of our Johnstown Methodist church, and Dr. Norcross as presiding elder. This will be made known to the presiding bishop of the coming annual conference, who has the appointing power. The conference will meet in Columbus at the First M. E. church on September 18. The bishop is Luther B. Wilson.

Twenty-five members of the Palmer family met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Lucy Foster at this place for the purpose of holding their annual family reunion. A social good visit among the members and a splendid dinner constituted the day's entertainment. Those from a distance were Ray Patterson and wife of Columbus, Chas Munz and family of Akron, Will Palmer and family of Centerburg, Jacob Weaver and family of Edison and R. L. Palmer and family of Newark. All departed late in the evening hoping without the loss of one to meet again next year.

NEW MODEL FOR LARGE HAT.

A new French model hat is here sketched, the odd shape being decidedly new and becoming. The brim turns down all around, and is quite deep at the back and sides, although very short across the front. The model was in rough gray straw, having loops of black moire ribbon across the back, and a half wreath of pinkish yellow roses.

THE RED MEN'S STATE PICNIC

TO BE HELD ON THE OHIO STATE FAIR GROUNDS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 5.

Great Sachem E. J. Granger to Issue Special Invitations to All Tribes to Attend.

On Thursday, September 5, next, the Ohio State Fair grounds will resound with battle cries of Indian warriors, as on that day the Red Men of Ohio will hold a monster State Basket Picnic. Great Sachem, E. J. Granger, will soon issue a special invitation to each member of the order to attend, and the largest assemblage of Red Men ever in Ohio is promised. Not only from Ohio will they come, but the Uniformed Rank of Altoona, Pa., will be there to compete with Uniformed Division No. 12 in a prize drill. These companies will also contest in the prize drill of all civic societies.

The members of the various Columbus tribes are planning a number of pleasing surprises to entertain the visiting tribesmen, and for this purpose a committee consisting of one member from each tribe has been appointed. They will establish headquarters on the fair grounds where the visitors will be welcomed. An information bureau will also be maintained there and they will aid in securing suitable accommodations for the warriors while in the capital city. An auxiliary committee from the Pocahontas Councils of Columbus will look after the welfare of visiting squaws.

The bold warriors of Columbus are moving in secret regarding the entertainment features but it has been strongly hinted that the Big Chief will call together his brave band and entertain with a war dance. Equally as interesting features as the above are planning and the day will be devoted to strengthening the ties of fraternal brotherhood.

The Red Men are making strenuous efforts to capture the rich prize offered by the Ohio State Board of Agriculture for the organization registering the largest attendance during the week of the Ohio State Fair, September 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and the Great Sachem will urge each member to attend and register, that their effort may be successful.

SALOONISTS AND BREWERS EXCITED

Agents of the Government Revenue Office Chasing New Style Beer.

Soloonsists, brewers, liquor dealers and revenue agents are up in arms against the latest American novelty which has made its debut in such an insidious manner that it promises to put the saloon out of business.

It's the beer capsule.

Ever hear of it or see one?

Well, here's the way it works:

Take a capsule gently between the thumb and first finger, carefully drop the powdered contents in a glass of cool water, and presto! you have a glass of foaming amber fluid which would make the ordinary schooner look like a rowboat. In eastern clubs the novelty has had a great sale and now those interested locally fear for the worst.

"I'd like to see one of those capsules," said O. S. Cheney, chief deputy collector of internal revenue, at Toledo. "Must be a wonderful thing. I've heard so much about it."

Agents from the government revenue office have been chasing the elusive tabloid jag capsule for several days, but have been unable to get the trail. In the government building revenue officials and others stand around the corridor talking in excited groups. The strange beer powder is the subject.

If a man can carry a formula for a beer in his vest pocket, what is going to happen to the regular dispensaries? That is the important question. On the other hand Uncle Sam has a little card up his sleeve which he will play when the capsule salesman is found. The latter will probably be assessed the special tax, the same as others who deal in liquor, or pay the regular brewery tax. Uncle Sam realizes millions of dollars revenue from brewers every year and will not permit the beer capsule to make a hit free gratis.

HERR SPIEGLEBURGER UNDT AMMUDER CHOKE-VAT?

THE WORLD'S BEST SHORT FICTION

The Little God and Dicky

By Josephine Dodge Daskam

"All by herself, a little girl was gravely performing a dance"

"Where are you going?" said somebody, as he slunk out toward the hat-rack.

"Oh, out," he returned, with what a vaudeville artist would call a good imitation of a person wishing to appear blamelessly forgetful of something he remembered quite distinctly.

"Well, see that you don't stay long. Remember what it is this afternoon." He turned like a star at bay.

"What is it this afternoon?" he demanded viciously.

"You know very well."

"See that you're here, that's all. You've got to get dressed."

"I will not go to that old dancing school again, and I tell you that I won't, and I won't. And I won't."

"Now, Dick, don't begin that all over again. It's so silly of you. You've got to go."

"Why?"

"Because it's the thing to do."

"Why?"

"Because you must learn to dance."

"Why?"

"Every nice boy learns."

"Why?"

"That will do, Richard. Go and find your pumps. Now, get right up from the floor and if you scratch the Morris chair I shall speak to your father. Aren't you ashamed of yourself? Get right up—you must expect to get hurt, if you pull so. Come, Richard! Now, stop crying—a great boy like you! I am sorry I hurt your elbow, but you know very well you aren't crying for that at all. Come along!"

His sister flitted by the door in an engaging deshabille, her accordeon-pleated skirt held carefully from the floor, her hair in two glistening blue-knotted pigtails. A trail of rose-scented soap floated through the hall. "Hurry up, Dick, or we'll be late," she called back sweetly, secure in the knowledge that if such virtuous accents maddened him still further, no one could blame her. His rage justified her faith.

"Oh, you shut up, will you!" he snarled.

She looked meek, and listened to his deprivation of dessert for the rest of the week with an air of love for the sinner and hatred for the sin that deceived her older sister, who was dressing her.

A desperately patient monologue from the next room indicated the course of events there.

"Your necktie is on the bed. No, I don't know where the blue one is—it doesn't matter; that is just as good. Yes, it is. No, you can't. You will have to wear one. Because no one ever goes without. I don't know why."

"Many a boy would be thankful and glad to have silk stockings. Nonsense—your legs are warm enough. I don't believe you. Now, Richard, how perfectly ridiculous! There is no left and right to stockings. You have no time to change. Hurry up, then. Because they are made so, I suppose. I don't know why."

"Brush it more on that side—no, you can't go to the barber's. You went last week. It looks perfectly well. I cut it? Why, I don't know how to trim hair. Anyway, there isn't time now. It will have to do. Stop your scowling, for goodness' sake, Dick. Have you a handkerchief? It makes no difference, you must carry one. You ought to want to use it. Well, you should. Yes, they always do, whether they have colds or not. I don't know why."

"Your Golden Text. The idea! No, you cannot. You can learn that Sunday before church. This is not the time to learn Golden Texts. I never saw such a child. Now take your pumps and find the plush bag. Why not? Put them right with Ruth's. That's what the bag was made for. Well, how do you want to carry them? Why, I never heard of anything so silly! You will knot the strings. I don't care if they do carry skates that way—skates are not slippers. You'd lose them. Very well, then, only hurry up. I should think you'd be ashamed to have them dangling around your neck that way. Because people never do carry them so I don't know why."

"Now, here's your coat. Well, I can't help it, you have no time to hunt for them. Put your hands in your pockets—It's not far. And mind you don't run for Ruth every time. You don't take any paths with her, and you hustle her about. Little girl. Yes, you must. I shall speak to your father if you answer me in that way, Richard. Men don't dance with their sisters. Because they don't. I don't know why."

He slammed the door till the piazza shook, and strode along beside his scandalized sister, the pumps clapping noisily on his shoulders.

She tripped along contentedly—she liked to go. The personality capable of extracting pleasure from the hour before them baffled his comprehension, and he scowled fiercely at her, rubbing his silk stockings together at every step, to enjoy the strange, smooth sensation thus produced. This gave him a low-legged gait that distressed his sister beyond words.

"I think you must stop. Everybody's looking at you! Please stop, Dick. Pendleton, you're a mean old thing. I should think you'd be ashamed to carry your slippers that way. If you jump in that wet place and spatter me I tell you, you will care, won't you? I tell you, just the same. You're just as bad as you can be. I can't speak with you to-day."

She pursed up her lips and maintained a determined silence. He rubbed his legs together with renewed emphasis. Acquaintances met them and passed, unconscious of anything but the sweet picture of a sister and a brother, and a plush bag going daintily and dutifully to dancing school; but his heart was hit at the injustice of the world and the hypocritical cant of girls, and her thoughts were busy with her indictment of him before the family tribunal—she hoped he would be sent to bed. Life is full and running over with just such rosy deceptions.

He jumped over the threshold of the long room and knew his cap at the head of a boy he knew, who was standing on one foot to put on a slipper. This destroyed his friend's balance, and a cheering scuffle followed. Life assumed a more hopeful aspect. In the other end of the room his sister had flattered into whispering, giggling, many-colored throes; buzzing and chuckling with the rest, she adjusted her slippers, and perked out her bows, her braids quivering with sociability.

A shrill whistle called them out in two crowding bunches to the polished floor.

Hoping against hope, he had clung to the beautiful thought that Miss Dorothy would be sick, that she had missed her train—but no! there she was, with her shiny high-heeled slippers, her pink skirt that pulled out like a fan, and her silver whistle on a chain. The little clucking castanets that rang out so sharply were in her hand beyond a doubt.

"Ready, children! Spread out. Take your lines. First position. Now!"

The large man at the piano, who always looked half asleep, thundered out the first bars of the latest waltz, and the business began.

Their eyes were fixed solemnly on Miss Dorothy's pointed shoes. They slipped and slid and crossed their legs and arched their pudgy insteps, the boys breathed hard over their glimmering collars. On the right side of the hall thirty hands held out their diminutive skirts at an alluring angle.

The chords rolled out slower, with dramatic pauses between sharp clicks of the castanets rang through the hall, a line of toes rose gradually towards the horizontal, whirled more or less steadily about, crossed behind, bent low, bowed, and with a flutter of skirts resumed the first position.

A little breeze of laughing admiration circled the row of mothers and aunts.

"Isn't that too cunning? Just like a little ballet! Aren't they graceful, really, now?"

"One, two, three! One, two, three! Slide, slide, cross; one, two, three!"

There are those who find pleasure in the aimless intricacies of the dance, self-respecting men even have been known to frequent voluntarily assemblies devoted to this nerve-racking and astutizing futility. Among such, however, you shall seek in vain in future years for Richard Carr Pendleton.

"One, two, three! Reverse, two, three!" If you want your heels clipped, step back inadvertently into Master Pendleton's domain. No matter how pure your purposes, you will illustrate the inevitable doom of the transgressor against nature's immutable limitations, you will be severely tripped and it will be just—he is triumphantly following the rules.

The whistle shrilled.

"Ready for the two-step, children! A mild tolerance grew on him. If dancing must be, better the two-step than anything else. It is not an alluring dance, your two-step, it does not require temperament. Any one with a firm intention of keeping the time and a strong arm can drag a girl through it very acceptably. It was Dicky's custom to hurl himself at the colored man nearest him, seize a Sabine, so to speak, and plunge into the dance. He had his eye on Louise Hetherington, a large, plump girl, with a tremendous braid of hair. She was a size too big for the class, but everybody liked to dance with her, for she knew how, and she danced like a champion. But she had been snapped at by the six-year-old Harold, and was even now guiding his infant steps around the hall.

Dicky skirted the row of mothers and aunts cautiously. Heaven send Miss Dorothy was not looking at him! She seemed to have eyes in the back of her head, that woman.

"Oh, look! Did you ever see anything so sweet?" said somebody. Involuntarily he turned. There, in a corner, all by herself, a little girl was gravely performing a dance. He stared at her curiously. For the first time, free from all personal connection with her, he discovered that those motions were pretty.

She was otherworldly slender, brown-eyed, brown haired, brown skinned. A little fluffy white dress spread fan-shaped about her knees, her ankles were bird-like. The foot on which she poised seemed hardly to rest on the ground; the other, pointed outward, hovered easily—now here, now there. Her eyes were serious, her hair hung loose. She swayed lightly; one little gloved hand held out her skirt, the other marked the time. Her performance was an apotheosis of the two-step, that metronomic dance would not have recognized itself under her treatment.

Dicky admired. But the admiration of his sex is notoriously fatal to the art that attracts it. He advanced and bowed jerkily, grasped one of the loops of her sash in the back, stamped gently a moment to get the time, and the artist sank into the partner, the prouette grew coarse to sympathize with. See.

"Don't they do it well, though! See those little things near the door!" he thought as they went by, and his heart swelled with pride.

"What's your name?" he asked abruptly after the dance.

"Thethella," she hesitated, and shook her hair over her cheek. She was very shy.

"Miss's Richard Carr Pendleton, my father's a lawyer. What's yours?"

"I—I don't know," she gasped, obviously considering flight.

He chuckled delightedly. Was ever such engaging idiosyncy? She didn't know. Well, well!

"Fool!" he said grandly. "I guess you know. Don't you, really?"

She looked hopelessly at her fan, and shook her head. Suddenly a light dawned in her big eyes.

"Maybe I know," she murmured. "I guess I know. He—he's a really thithella!"

"A really state? That isn't anything—nothing at all. A really state?" he frowned at her judiciously. Her lip quivered; she turned and ran away.

"Here, come back!" he called, but she was gone.

"Ready for the cotillion, children!" and Miss Dorothy, her arms full of long colored ribbons, was upon him.

There was a rumbling chord from the piano, a mad rush for the head of the line. A rosy blonde, with big, china-blue eyes, dragged her protesting sailor-suited partner to the front, and glared triumphantly at the rosy-poly couple behind her. They stared at each other desperately—they had had their dreams of precedence—and suddenly, as the robbers stood far apart and swung their arms carelessly, the rosy-poly couple crouched down, slipped between them, and emerged at the head of the procession!

The march began. Dicky, linked to a tom-boy in white duck, who whisked the march correctly as she swung along, had fought for a place behind his late partner, and as they clambered into adjacent chairs he nudged her violently and whispered, "I'm going to choose you!"

She smiled shyly.

"All right," she said.

Miss Dorothy approached with the favors. A violent hissing and snapping of fingers burst out from the line. They wriggled on their chairs. Miss Dorothy paused threateningly.

"Perhaps we had better not have any cotillion," she said sternly. "If I hear another hiss—!" There was a dead silence.

world, these he had never looked to find in her; but perceptions, feminine intuitions—were they lacking, too?

Poor deluded soul! What shall emancipation, what shall higher education profit you that cannot even now discern what charm has entangled your brothers and husbands?

"She puts her finger in her mouth! She can't talk plain!" Alas, my sisters, it was Helen's fingers that toppled over Troy, and Diane de Poitiers stammered!

He listened calmly to his sister's account of his infatuation and its causelessness.

"Why, she's a nice little girl," said his aunt, smiling; "but really, she can't be called exactly pretty. There is something rather attractive about her eyes."

In this wise may Mark Anthony's aunt have dismissed the very serpent of old Nile herself!

"I should like," he said to his mother the next day, "to go and see her."

"Well, you can go with me to-morrow, perhaps, when I call on Mrs. Weston," she assented.

"What? Why, of course not! Men don't go calling in pumps. Your best shoes will do. Are you crazy? A straw hat in February! You will wear your middy cap. Now don't argue the matter, Richard, or you can't go at all."

Seated opposite her on a hassock, their mother chatting across the room, his assurance withered away. There was nothing whatever to say, and he said it, adequately perhaps, but with a sense of deepening embarrassment. She took refuge behind her hair, and they stared uncomfortably at each other.

"And he has never condescended to have anything to do with little girls before, so we are much impressed."

Oh, why did not the hassock yawn beneath him and swallow him up! To discuss him as if he were a piece of furniture! Laugh away! The crackling of thorns under a pot.

Day before yesterday he had been so easily grand seigneur, so tolerantly charmed; to-day he wished he had not come. Why didn't she speak? If only they were out of doors; in a room with pictures and cushions a man is at such a disadvantage.

"If you'll come over to my house, I'll show you the biggest rat-hole you ever saw—it's in the stable!" he said desperately. It was a good deal to do for a girl, but it was worth it.

"Oh! Oh!" she said, and her eyes widened.

"Maybe you can see the rat—he doesn't often come out, though," he added honestly.

She shuddered and twisted her fingers violently.

"No! No!" she whispered revoltedly. "I—I hate rats! I dreamed about one! I had to have the gath lit! Oh, no!"

Frightened at this long speech, she looked obstinately in her lap, though he tried persistently to catch her eye and smile.

Their mothers' voices rose and fell; they chattered meaninglessly. Ladies talked and talked; they never did anything to speak of; they only talked.

"Look here! Do you know what Boston bull pups are? Do you?" She nodded vigorously.

"Well, you know their tails!" She nodded uncertainly.

"You know they're just little stumps?"

"Oh, yeth!" she beamed at him. "My Uncle Harryth got a bulldog. Fifth name th. He liketh me."

"Well see here! Do you know how they make their tails short? A man bites em!" A fellow told me—

"Oh! Oh! Oh!" She shuddered off the hassock, and rushed to her mother, gasping with horror.

"He thayth—th thayth—!" words failed her. Broken sobs of "Eli! Oh, Eli!" filled the parlor. He was dazed, terrified. What had happened? What had he done? He was shuffled disgracefully from the room; apologies rose above her sobbing; the door closed behind Dicky and his mother.

Waves of rebuke rolled over his troubled spirit.

"Of all dreadful things to say to a poor, nervous, little girl! I am too mad!" Richard, how do you learn such dreadful, dreadful things? It's not true."

"But, mamma, it is! It truly is. When they are little a man bites them off. Peter told me so. He puts his mouth right down—"

"Richard! Not another word! You are disgusting—perfectly disgusting. You trouble me very much."

He retired to the clothes-tree in the side yard—there were no junipers there—and cursed his gods. To have made her cry! They thought he didn't care, but oh, he did! He felt as if he had eaten a bad, gray stone that weighed down his stomach. The cat slunk by, but he threw nothing at her, and his neighbor's St. Bernard puppy rolled inquiringly into the hedge, stuck there, and thrashed about helplessly, but he said nothing to frighten it. He thought of supper—the yellow custards—but without the usual thrill. What was the matter? Was he going to be sick? There seemed no outlook to life—one thing was as good as a dull, he regarded going to bed with an anxious eye. It might be eight o'clock now for all he cared.

At night his mother came and sat for a moment on the side of the bed.

"Papa doesn't want you to feel too bad, dear," she said. "He knows that you never meant to frighten Cecilia so. You know that little girls are very different from little boys in some ways. Things that seem—must—be to you, seem very cruel to them. To-morrow would you like to send her some flowers and write her a little note, and tell her how sorry you are?"

He could not speak, but he seized his mother's hand and kissed it up to her lace ruff. The cold, gray stone melted away from his stomach; again his future stretched rosy vague before him. In happy dreams he had the honors of the rat-hole to a sweet, shy guest.

In the morning he applied himself to his note of apology; his sister ruled the lines on a beautiful sheet of paper with a curly gold "E" at the top, and he sing that!" he cried wildly.

She looked elated.

"Why not? Dicky thingth it!" she said with a happy smile.

She had a heavenly habit, left from babyhood, of referring to her interlocutor and occasionally to herself in the third person.

"But girls mustn't sing it," he warned her sternly. "Don't you dare to—it's a secret."

She danced farther away.

"Dicky thingth it! Thithy thingth it!" she persisted, and as he scowled she purred her lips again.

Yelly belly, yelly belly—

"I won't sing it! I won't!" he cried desperately. "I won't if you'll keep still! So there! I tell you I won't!"

She stopped, amused at his emotion. All ignorant of his sacrifice, all careless of his heroic defense of her, she only knew that she could tease him in an entirely new way.

And the Little God, knowing that Dicky would keep his word, and that Peter would never get the chance for the scandalized admiration once in store for him, strutted proudly away and gazed up his chains. His victim was secure.

Her brother, on learning the facts, suggested slapping her, well—good heavens!—and having nothing more to do with her, for a mean, sneaking tattletale. There was an opportunity to break his bonds. But to those who have served the Little God it will be no surprise to learn that it was on that very evening that he made his famous proposal to the assembled family, namely, that he and Cecilia should be really engaged like her Uncle Harry and Miss Merriam, and in a little while marry and set up housekeeping in the guest chamber.

"That's what Miss Merriam is going to do," he explained. "And Cissy's grandma is sorry, too; it doesn't leave her any place for company but the hall bedroom. But they've got to have the room, she sposes."

"That will do, Richard! You are not to repeat everything you hear. And I am afraid I need the guest chamber. What should we do when Aunt Nannie comes?"

"Oh, Cissy could have her crib right in the room. She wouldn't mind Aunt Nannie," he replied superbly. "She always sleeps in a crib, and she always will. I had scares her—she's afraid she'll fall out. I could sleep on the couch, like Christmas time!"

But in the manner of age the wide world over; they merely urged him to wait. There was plenty of time. Time! and she might be living in the house with them!

It was that very night that he reached the top of the wave, and justified the Little God's selection.

He came down to breakfast rapt and quiet. He saluted his oatmeal by mistake and never knew the difference. His sister laughed derisively, and explained his folly to him as he swallowed the last spoonful, but he only smiled kindly at her. After his egg he spoke.

"I dreamed that it was dancing-school. And I went. And I was the only fellow there. And what do you think? All the little girls were Cecilia!"

They gasped.

"You don't suppose he'll be a poet, do you, Ritch? Or a genius, or anything?" his mother inquired anxiously.

"Lord, No!" his father returned. "I should say he was more likely to be a Mormon!"

Dick knew nothing of either class. But the Little God knew very well what he was, and was at that moment making out his diploma.

MARJORIE DANE'S ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

Dear Miss Dane: I am 5 feet 7 inches in height, bust 34, waist 24, hips 36, weight 106 pounds, age 25 years, blue eyes, complexion neither fair nor dark, very little color, but red lips, hair the shade of sample; have medium high forehead, higher at temples, rather long face. How shall I wear my hair? What color can I wear successfully and what should I avoid?

O. M. A.

I should think that if you parted your hair, then crimped or waved it a little and brought back softly over the tips of the ears and dressed it low in the back you would find it becoming.

Becoming colors are black, white, mauve, purple, green, deep brown, all shades of blue, gray, pale yellow, old rose and pale pink. No fawns, modes or pale tans.

Dear Miss Dane: I would like your advice on making a petticoat of black heatherbloom, with a circular flounce and three little ruffles on the flounce. Would you cut the little ruffles on the straight of the goods or on the bias?

Enclosed you will find a sample of my hair. What color is it? What are my most becoming colors? My eyes are a bluish gray and I have no color in the face. I am 5 feet 5 inches tall, 38 bust measure, 26 waist and 42 hip measure.—L. P.

If you intend to gather the ruffles, then they should be cut on the bias in order to produce the best effect. If, however, you wish them to be knifed, then they should be cut on the straight of the goods.

You are, I fancy, an ash blonde, or else between colors. The shade of the hair, however, inclines me to believe you are the former.

You can wear deep and golden brown, pale yellow, peach color, all pasted shades, pearl gray and the warmer grays, palest pink, pale and dark blue, cream and ivory.

Dear Miss Dane: I am 5 feet 11 inches tall, 23 inches around the waist and 36 inches bust. I am very dark, have brown hair and brown eyes. My face is quite round. I am 18 years old. Can you suggest a way to dress my hair, which is very thin and short?—Inquisitive.

Take your hair back all around softly to the crown of the head, after loosely waving it. Tie or secure in some other fashion, and then curl the strand with the first two fingers of each hand and pin down to the head. A comb is the correct finish for this new style of hairdressing, but if your locks are very scant, then you might substitute a ribbon bow.

Dear Miss Dane: Will you kindly advise me whether I can remodel an old dress and what will be the best way to do so; what will be the better combination, as I suppose I must buy other goods, as I cannot match this. I enclose sample. It was made five years ago, was five gored skirt, full waist and old-fashioned sleeves, a sort

GIRL'S CAPE WITH HOOD.

The little cape made in Red Riding Hood style is always a pretty, attractive and useful garment for young girls. This one is absolutely simple while it is cut with graceful and abundant fullness and includes a hood that can be drawn up over the head, providing genuine warmth and comfort whenever desirable. As shown, it is made of dark red broadcloth, stitched with white silk and is lined with soft white silk, and is designed for party wear, but cloth of many sorts, drap d'ete and the like, are all appropriate with the lining chosen to suit the color and the use to which the cape is to be put. If designed for school wear, cheviot, homespun and the like are always desirable and many of these cloths do not require lining as the inner side is finished and the warmth is quite sufficient without.

The cape is made with the cape and the hood. The cape is fitted by means of darts at the shoulders, and the hood requires to be lined with some soft silk and stitched to form a casing in which elastic is inserted, which serves to draw it up about the face.

The quantity of material required for the medium size (8 years) is 3 1/2 yards 27, 1 1/2 yards 44, or 1 1/2 yards 52 inches wide, with 1/4 yard of silk for lining the hood.

The pattern 5312, is cut in sizes for girls of 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years of age.

TUCKED BLOUSE.

The lingerie blouse appears to grow in popularity from month to month, with the result that new and fresh designs are constantly appearing. Here is one of the prettiest and daintiest that is absolutely simple at the same time and capable of all-year-round wear.

The pattern 5312, is cut in sizes for girls of 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 years of age.

of coat sleeve. The front gore was quite narrow and cannot be used. The skirt has a narrow ruffle on the bottom. I am 52 years old, rather stout, and 5 feet 2 inches tall.—Mrs. A. W.

What a dainty grenadine!

I wish I knew whether there was any fullness at the top. Without the information, the only thing that I can suggest would be to combine either with a plain grenadine or else with black messaline silk, which you will find to be an exact match to the stripes in the sample. The skirt could then be remodeled in panel effect, a new one coming in the front. These could be arranged to form a double box pleat, which would overlay the gathered panel of the striped grenadine, alternating with them, of course. The waist could be cut away at the top for a round yoke, or in the long V's surplice effect, as you fancy, will be the more becoming, using black chintilly lace lined with white for the filling of either.

This could be outlined with a fichu or frill of the plain goods and the sleeves could be made in small puffs, and then covered with little frills of the plain and the striped alternating. The belt will be of ribbon or soft silk as you have chosen, and the cuffs may be as pretty as you choose. If these suggestions are practical, I am sure the result will be a handsome up-to-date gown, appropriate for almost any occasion.

GOOD HEALTH

A Few Simple Hints on Simple Ways to Remain Well.

By Cousin John.

No. VII.

Of all diets, fruit is one of the most healthful. Yet about this time of the year, among the widely prevalent complaints are those due to eating unripe or over-ripe fruit or to over-indulgence in ripe and perfectly sound fruit.

It is rather hard to say in many cases, just what causes the trouble. But the chances are that it is not the fruit itself that is responsible, but the stomach of the patient.

What is meant is this: It has been noticed by observers that persons accustomed to eating large quantities of fruit all the year 'round, rarely develop any bowel or stomach troubles in the summer. The sufferers are mostly people who do not eat fruit habitually, and who become fruit-eaters only in the summer season when their own northern fruits are ripe and tempting.

The action of fruit on the bowels is well known. Fruit juices of all sorts act as a cleanser and germicide, and scour the inner walls of the intestines free of certain bacilli and microbes that infect them. Lately there have been several deeply interesting and learned articles written about this army of intestinal bacteria that inhabits the intestines of all human beings—how they remain harmless and inactive for years, simply accumulating all the time until some specific illness like typhoid, fever comes along. Then these hitherto harmless microbes promptly go to work, set up fermentations and inflammations and otherwise produce all the distressing and dangerous bowel and stomach troubles that often end so fatally.

Now, habitual fruit-eaters often are singularly free from these unwelcome occupants. Therefore it is quite possible that, when fruit is introduced into a system that is not accustomed to lots of it, the trouble that ensues is not due to the fruit, but due to the prompt fight that the intestinal bacteria set up against it.

It is necessary, therefore, for those who are not habitual fruit-eaters, to be very careful, even in the case of perfectly sound and perfectly ripe fruit.

Another prevalent trouble during the summer is that which follows a change of drinking water. Sometimes the illness that ensues is alarmingly violent. The natural assumption is that the part of the sufferer that the water may be better than the kind to which the patient has been accustomed. The difference may be caused simply by the illness in the chemical constituents of the new drinking water.

Many of the cases of cholera infantum, dysentery, summer complaint, cholera morbus, etc., that occur in summer resorts are, therefore, due not to anything harmful in fruit or water, but merely to the effect of introducing into the system something to which it is not accustomed.

Another—this for table linen—is the roller. Get a big cardboard mailing tube as long as a folded table cloth is wide. Fasten a narrow ribbon inside the tube so a yard hangs out of each end. Then, when the freshly ironed cloth lies long and white, instead of folding it, roll it up about the tube, keeping it straight and smooth. The down the end with the ribbon, cross the strings, pass them around the roll, and tie on the other side. Thus the cloth keeps its unmarred smoothness, yet is easy to handle, and easier still to store in the closet.

wear. In the illustration it is made of linen lawn with the trimming of German Valenciennes lace, and is consequently exceedingly durable. But it is appropriate for all the pretty cotton fabrics and the thin silks that are worn in lingerie style as well as linen, while the trimming can be either lace or embroidery as liked. Valenciennes and Cluny lace both are being greatly used and both make exceedingly dainty and charming effects.

The waist is made with the front and the backs which are tucked to rope depth. The trimming is arranged over them on indicated lines and terminates in pointed ends. The sleeves are of moderate size, trimmed in harmony with the waist and finished with straight cuffs.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is 3 1/2 yards 27, 1 1/2 yards 44 or 1 1/2 yards 52 inches wide with 9 yards of insertion.

The pattern 5314, is cut in sizes for a 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inch bust measure. Patterns will be sent on receipt of ten cents each by Marjorie Dane, 44 East Twenty-third street, New York City.

Outdoor Fresh Air Closet

PEOPLE with plenty of ground, space, yet constricted houses, may profitably take a leaf from the book of South-country household economy. It is common there for country-folk to have a sort of outdoor fresh-air closet, a small detached structure set in the shade of a tree, standing upon four tall legs, with a flat shingle roof of barely enough pitch to shed rain. The floor is at least four feet from the ground, and the whole structure only big enough to reach well across. There are shelves all round, and the weatherboarding up next the roof is full of tiny auger holes. The door fits tight, and fastens with a lock. Around each of the four legs there is commonly a tar-bandage applied six inches above the ground. This traps verminous ants, spiders, and the like, thus keeping the inside clear. The structure is whitewashed inside and out twice a year. In hot weather door and shelves are washed every morning, and scoured twice a week. Such a fixture should not cost over three dollars, even if one hires it built; and it is certainly among the handiest things one can have about the house or yard.

Proper Care of Milk Vessels

MILK vessels cannot possibly be scoured too much, but may well have too much soap used in the scouring. Soap, indeed, is somewhat out of place in dairy work. Instead use washing soda, borax, boracic acid, and clean white sand. Wash anything milky first in cold water, never more than tepid. Hot water cooks and cokes the milk, and soap changes it to a slimy emulsion. Remove the milk thoroughly; then, to take away the greasy residue, wash and scrub well in water as hot as can be borne, with plenty of soda in it; then rinse in clean hot water, and dry with a clean towel. Once a week scald out everything with a strong solution of borax, after the washing and rinsing. Let the borax

DAINTIES FOR SUMMER AFTERNOON TEAS

EVERYONE has tired of the old-fashioned meat and bread sandwiches and something new that will please the palate on these hot and sultry afternoons will surely be welcomed. A very economical way of using up fish, and one of the most popular of the new sandwiches is made as follows:

Take the yolks of six hard-boiled eggs and rub them to a paste, and mix it with the same quantity of cold fish that has chilled in the ice box. Spread this mixture on crisp lettuce leaves, add a dash of mayonnaise dressing and spread between thin slices of white bread.

Every wise housekeeper has a can of sardines on the shelf for emergencies, and here is a nice sandwich that can be prepared in a few moments for the unexpected guest: Take half the contents of a box of sardines, skin and bone them. Lib or pound them to a paste, and moisten them with lemon juice and a dash of cayenne pepper. Spread this between thin satiny crackers.

Another sandwich that can be made in a few moments notice is by chopping two large crisp cucumbers very fine, and add to this a little onion juice, just enough to give it a flavor, and a little bit of cayenne pepper. Mix this with a little mayonnaise dressing and spread on thin slices of white bread.

By now, you may have become tired of the ice tea, and it is too warm for chocolate, and nothing is more refreshing than the following punch served to a friend on a hot afternoon: Put a heaping tablespoon of good tea in a pitcher, pour over it a quart of boiling water and let it stand for a few moments—covered. Strain this into a bowl or large pitcher, add one pound of sugar, juice of six lemons and two oranges, and a quart of apple-juice. Be liberal with your ice, and it will also add to the flavor to put in a few strawberries or raspberries, and a cucumber peel. This recipe will make ample punch for a dozen people.

At this season of the year when fruit is plentiful, it is well to take advantage of it in the way of fruit punches, and I am giving you several recipes that are delicious and most refreshing:

The Care of Mirrors

REMOVE fly specks and dirt from mirrors surfaces with whitening mixed to a cream in alcohol. To clean a gilt mirror frame, brush off every particle of loose dust, then wet it a little space at a time with alcohol applied with a camel's hair brush. Rub off the alcohol before it dries with clean, soft silk cloths or fine flannel. The dirt should come with it—hence change the cloth often.

If there are breaks or rubbed places in an ornamental frame, fill up with plaster, wet very soft with white of egg, shape quickly. Let set, then smooth over with plaster newly wet to a cream in tepid water. When the outer coat is full dry, fill either by pressing on gold leaf or painting with gold paint. Only the finest frames are worth genuine gold leaf.

If a mirror is badly blurred, resilvering is the only genuine cure. Partial blurring may be mitigated in several ways, and scratches made almost invisible. Take out the wooden back, wipe off the silvered side quickly and carefully with a cloth wrung out of warm water. Be sure to wring it dry, and follow it with a patting from a soft hot towel.

If there are scratches, paint them over with the very best silver paint, cover, and leave to dry. Or the scratch may be lanked with a square of silver, or tin-foil, with a drop of white glue at each corner to hold it in place. With clean outline, wet the glass as to give a clear outline, wet the blurred silver with alcohol, and after the silver dries off. Then either paint the clear spot or back it with foil. The foil must be something bigger—big enough to be glued to sound silvering, as the glue will show through the glass. Lacking both paint and foil, a mirror may be bettered by simply laying gray-dark cloth behind the defects. If it hangs away from the light, black cloth is better than gray.

For the Dog's Comfort

Fleas are prime dog pests. To rid a dog of them, muzzle him well, then wash him thoroughly with tepid water and either carbolic or larkspur soap. While he is in the water, comb him carefully all over with the coarsest make of fine-tooth comb. This will bring away the half-drawn fleas, which the water will finish. Wash out the tub well, then rinse the dog clean of even the smell of soap, rub him dry with coarse cloths, and keep him out of draughts for a couple of hours. Let him stay muzzled for that space of time, so he cannot lick his coat until it is thoroughly aired. When there is no longer a suspicion of dampness on the skin, part the hair along the backbone and between and behind the ears, and blow into it, with thin bellows, a light coat of flowers of sulphur.

For mange, bathe with sulphur soap, and, after drying, rub the affected parts with flowers of sulphur stirred well through fresh unsalted butter. Wipe all trace of milk out of the hair before putting in the sulphur. This ointment is good for all sorts of skin troubles, but when a dog or any sort of pet is seriously affected, to this should be lost in consulting a veterinarian surgeon.

A big house of kennel, should be whitewashed inside and out with white wash. Add to it three ounces of flowers of sulphur to make it fairly yellow, or carbolic acid in the proportion of half a pint to twenty-five gallons of water. Or, if you wish, use the white wash, or any of these will make the whitewash a good preservative of both vermin and dampness.

Potomaine Poison

If ptomaine poisoning is suspected, give active purgatives, stimulate the patient, keep him warm, and put mustard upon stomach, wrists, ankles, and the back of the neck. Arsenical poisons all require first an emetic, and then without waiting for its action, two or three raw eggs, with a glass of sweet milk afterward.

Gaining Beauty by Patience

If you want to improve your looks, you must take time and have patience. You cannot apply a hair tonic every night for a week and then, because the housecleaning has made you tired or the spring sewing has rushed you, go to bed for three nights running without applying any tonic at all. If you want to keep your parlor spotless, you must do it a little every day, and if you want nice hair, you must brush it every day. If you want shiny hands, you must use your manicure every day. If you want a good complexion, you will not secure it by taking internal remedies and using expensive cosmetics, when you will not allow time for a daily bath, the use of the flesh brush and proper massage.

Have you ever sat behind a woman at theatre or church and thought what a pity it was that so unimpressive a person should be allowed the privilege of having such pretty frocks, while really pretty women were doomed to obviously home-made frocks of cheap materials? That just goes to prove that no matter how expensive the gown, the woman who is not well-groomed, well-puffed, toilet, gains nothing from the price of her dress. Really, the pretty frock makes her less attractive by contrast.

If you are going to a party or to the theatre, begin to prepare for the place before dark. Lie down for at least half an hour, and if you are thin and tired looking, take a cup of hot milk before lying down. Have your room dark, rest in a recliner, or better still, in your nightgown, and relax absolutely. Then take a tepid bath and make your toilet deliberately. If you cannot afford to employ some one to dress your hair, take time to dress it carefully yourself. Do not curl a few superficial locks and "rat" the hair beneath. Either curl or wave it deeply or not at all. If you do not wave it, then brush it until it shines like polished metal. When the hair is dressed, cover it carefully with a net which you can take off when your dress is completed, or you can wear it to the home of your hostess or to the theatre if the night be damp.

To begin with, if your complexion is muddy, before doing your hair, steam your face for fifteen minutes, and apply a cleansing cream for two minutes more. Rub this cream out of the pores with a soft bit of old linen. This operation leaves your face delightfully cool and clean. Now apply your face powder thickly with a puff, and then rub it in with a chamomile skin, using a rotary motion. The puff alone leaves it in unsightly patches. If you are very pale and just the merest touch of rouge will do it might be termed an influential portion, and rub it into the cheeks with a bit of fur or a rabbit's foot. Pale lips may be touched up with a genuine vermilion comes for the purpose, and I will be glad to furnish formulae for harmless lip coloring and rouge on receipt of a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Now touch up the ears with a bit of red cream and then powder, applied with a soft rag. Treat the neck with liquid white, formula for which has often been published in this column.

And finally, just before leaving, powder the face once more, using the chamomile skin lightly and shading the powder into the corners. Do not apply rouge thickly nor darken your eyebrows. Such make-up is ostentatious and vulgar. Remember that face powder comes in four shades, dead white, cream, flesh and brunoise pink. Be sure to use the powder that matches your skin perfectly.

PLAIN PLAY CLOTHES

Smart and simple are the latest styles in play clothes for little folks, and plainer than ever. Comfort is the first consideration in the dressing of children, and it is the plain frock cut on simple lines and of good material, that is to be found oftener than any other in the wardrobes of the tots. Delicately colored lawns, swisses and fine blue and white or pink and white cloth is used a great deal, and will be for fall, but for the little maid of four or five years, nothing is sweeter or prettier than pure white. Dainty simplicity characterizes the little frocks shown in design No. 5725. It is shaped by shoulder and under-arm seams, and is gathered at the neck, edge in front and back. Frills of narrow Valenciennes lace afford a pretty finish for the neck, and full bishop sleeves, and a band of insertion to match is laid in above the deep hem. Nainsook, cambric, lawn, linen and dimity are generally used, and a fine quality of English long cloth may also be employed. The two-year size will require two yards of 36-inch material.

Child's Dress, No. 5725. Sizes for 1, 2, 3 and 4 years.
The simple little frocks hanging straight from the shoulders are always appropriate for young children, and they are so simple to make. A very dainty model of this kind is shown in design No. 5721. It is made of white dimity, narrow edging being used for trimming the collar and sleeves. Linen, nainsook, French gingham, chambray and China silk are all suitable for reproduction. For a child of three years, 3 yards of 36-inch material will be required.

Child's Dress, No. 5721. Sizes for 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 years.

Design No. 5622 shows a set consisting of two practical little garments which will prove invaluable during the many months when so much of the children's time is spent out of doors. They may be worn by either girls or boys, and their simplicity will be appreciated at once by all mothers. For morning wear, a suit of this kind would be ideal, especially if made of denim, as it would stand the most strenuous wear and tear. The little bloomers are of the most excellent shaping and quite full at the knee, where they are held in place by an elastic inserted in a casing, or they may be gathered into a band and buttoned at the knee. Linen, gingham, denim, and Holland are all suggested. The medium size will require 2½ yards of 36-inch material for the apron, and 1½ yards for the bloomers.

Child's Apron and Bloomers, No. 5622. Sizes for 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8 and 9 years.

The little romper suit comes as near solving the problem of comfortable dressing for the tots as any garment yet devised. For morning wear nothing is better, as the child can romp and play to his heart's content without fear of injury to his pretty clothes. The bloomers portion is cut circular and is full enough to allow perfect freedom of limb. The fulness at the knee is regulated by a tape or an elastic, or it may be gathered into a band. Gingham, denim, Holland and percale are all good materials to use in the making of these garments. For a child of 5 years, 2½ yards of 36-inch material will be required.

Child's Rompers, No. 5842. Sizes for 3, 5, 7 and 9 years.

Little girls, as well as the little men, now wear bloomers or knickers under their play-time frocks. They are also worn under the little Russian dress.
